ROYAL NAVY

Commands For Jubilee Review

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 25.
A number of officers have been appointed this week to command ships which are being brought forward from the Reserve for the Jubilee Naval Review, chiefly destroyers and minesweepers. In addition, two chaplains from the retired list, the Rev. W. F. Scott (honorary representative of the Chaplain of the Fleet at Oxford University) and the Rev. T. W. L. Caspersz, have been appointed to the Effingham, flagship of the Reserve Fleet for service in that fleet from July 8 to 18.

Commander W. S. Bardwell, M.V.O., who has served in the Naval Intelligence Division during the past two years, will command the minesweeper Albion. Commander Bardwell commanded this ship in 1929-31, and it was while in her that he was made M.V.O. in recognition of escort duty with the Royal yacht Britannia. He commanded the surveying ship Daisy and the minesweepers Quorn and Derby during the War.

Commander N. J. W. Williams, D.S.C., from the Anti-Submarine School at Portland, will command the destroyer Vesper. He was promoted in June, 1931, when first lieutenant-commander of the Nelson, and graduated at the Staff College in 1932. His D.S.C. was awarded for gallantry and "wonderful coolness under most trying circumstances" at Jutland, where he was sub-lieutenant of the flotilla leader Tipperary, which was sunk.

Commander D. J. R. Simson, executive officer of the cruiser Cumberland until she was paid off in March, will command the destroyer Thanet. His first command was of a destroyer, the Usk, during the last year of the War, and he has since commanded other destroyers, the last being the Valorous in the Home Fleet in 1932-34. Like Commander Bardwell, Commander Simson was a King's Medalist as a naval cadet at Osborne and Dartmouth.

COMDR. WINGFIELD RETIRED

Lieutenant-Commander B. F. Wingfield, who has retired at his own request with the rank of commander, last served in 1932-34 as Flag Lieutenant-Commander to Vice-Admiral Sir Eric Pullerton, Commander-in-Chief at Devonport. Commander Wingfield has been 28 years in the Service, having entered Osborne as a cadet in January, 1907. He served in destroyers during the War as sub-lieutenant of the Ferret, and Mary Rose, first lieutenant of the Rob Roy and Parthian, and in command of the Kennet. After the War he served in the battleships Emperor of India and Benbow, was executive officer of the fishery cruiser Godetia, and in 1923-27 commanded the gunboat Woodlark in China.

VACANCIES FOR APPRENTICES

About 200 vacancies for boys will exist in the Regular Army in January, 1936, for training as artificers. Royal Artillery, armoured, bricklayers, blacksmiths, carpenters and joiners, clerks, electricians, fitters, instrument mechanics, masons, operators (signals), surveyors, &c. Candidates for training as artificers, R.A., or as armoured, must be between the ages of 14 years and 14 years 9 months on January 1, 1936, and for training as bricklayers must have attained the age of 15 years 8 months and be under the age of 18 years 4 months on January 1, 1936. Candidates for training in all other trades must be between the ages of 14 years and 15 years 5 months on January 1, 1936.

Boys accepted will learn a trade free of all cost to themselves or their parents. During their apprenticeship they will receive pay, in addition to their maintenance, and will also be granted liberal holidays. Entry will be by competitive examination, which will be held on July 2, 1935. Candidates wishing to compete should apply at any recruiting office, or to the Under-Secretary of State, the War Office, London, S.W.1, before June 4, 1935.

FUTURE PEACE OF EUROPE

German Attitude Defined

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

London, June 11.
The interview granted by Goebbels to Vernon Bartlett, the diplomatic correspondent of the "News Chronicle," published on Tuesday, throws strong light on the official attitude of the Reich towards international plans for securing the future peace of Europe.

Discussing the question of the proposed Western Air Pact which Bartlett said was criticised in England and France because it frees Germany's hands to attack Russia, Goebbels emphatically denied any such plan for the present or future on the part of the German Government, declaring that Germany believed in the non-aggression pacts but not on treaties to render mutual aid in time of need.

"We do not want any pact that might result in either French or Russian soldiers penetrating German territory even under the pretext of fighting against the aggressor," said the Minister. "History proves that the presence of such troops even those of an allied country often bring misery to the land." Goebbels added that Germany had saved the world from the spread of Bolshevism and was entitled to the thanks of Great Britain and other civilized nations. "Britons and Germans standing together could maintain the peace of the world," said the Minister.

Bartlett interposed that no substantial improvement in the Anglo-German relationships could be expected till the reconciliation of France and Germany was accomplished. Goebbels agreed without hesitation saying the Hitler's speeches showed that Germany was willing but that everything depended on France finding a statesman strong enough to persuade the French people to overcome the century old mistrust of their northern neighbour.

GRAF ZEPPELIN BACK HOME

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Friedrichshafen, June 11.
The airship "Graf Zeppelin" has returned safely from her fifth South American trip on Tuesday at 2.30 m. when she was greeted with demonstrations of wild enthusiasm by large crowds of sight-seeing holiday makers.

TRAVEL BY SEA AND AIR

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 29.
It is officially announced that arrangements have been made between the principal British and Dutch steamship lines serving India, Ceylon, the Straits, China, Japan, and Australia, and the British and Dutch air lines, whereby it is agreed to offer to the travelling public from the beginning of June facilities for travel either by sea or air. By means of this arrangement for interchange a passenger will be able to travel by steamer to his port of destination and return by air, or vice versa, on adjustment of fare.

The hope is expressed that this facility will be of service to travellers who may, from time to time, desire to take advantage of air travel for a section of their journey.

Should Women dread the approach of a perfectly natural event?

NATURE never intended you to suffer unduly. Why is it then that so many thousands of women experience such pain and weakness?

Simply because there is a shortage of vital minerals in the body.

That is the reply, supported by the best medical opinion. Calcium is the vital food of every body cell, and any shortage hinders the correct performance of all bodily functions, particularly those of women.

The use of Kalzana, the mineral food, for a few weeks provides the whole system with the indispensable minerals needed to establish that care-free, vigorous health that Nature intended you to enjoy.

But it must be Kalzana, as only in this scientific form (a combination of sodium-lactate and calcium-lactate) will the mineral salts be taken up and retained by your body.

Lose your dread—re-establish the functions, on a normal basis by starting a course of Kalzana to-day.

AMERICAN SILVER POLICY

Treasury Secretary Explains

Washington, June 11. Mr. Henry Morgenthau, Secretary of the Treasury, in a letter to Senator Patrick McCarran of Nevada, Senate leader of the Silver Bloc, has explained that the Treasury acquired 4,214,970,000 ounces of silver in the ten months ending May 31, or 285,000,000 ounces more than the entire world production for that period.

Mr. Morgenthau says the figures are surely sufficient answer to the rumours that the United States has abandoned its silver purchase programme.

Replying to the question as to what was the cause of the recent decline in silver prices, and whether the Treasury had sold any silver, Mr. Morgenthau declared:

"I did not believe that the sudden abnormal rise of silver to 81 cents in the later part of April was a result of normal operations of legitimate market forces. I rather think it is to be attributed to manipulation of special interests."

"The disappearance of this unhealthy condition and influence has been a wholesome development," he added.

TREASURY POLICY

Mr. Morgenthau's letter did not disclose what, if any, part of the Stabilisation Fund had been used for making silver purchases.

"I believe you will agree with me upon reflection that since the purpose of the operations of the Stabilisation Fund is a matter of American policy and primarily has to do with international exchange relations, rather than domestic monetary matters, discussion of the Fund's operation would not be in the public interest."

"This has been the fixed policy of the Treasury since the Fund was established. That it is generally appreciated is evidenced by the fact that no inquiry concerning the Fund's operations has come to the Treasury from any member of Congress or other Government official. Only those primarily interested in speculation in silver would seriously question the wisdom of this policy," the Secretary of the Treasury asserted.

Mr. Morgenthau stated that the Treasury had acquired during the ten months ending May 31, totals of 283,000,000 ounces of silver by direct purchase delivery of which had already been made, 25,647,000 ounces of newly mined silver and 11,850,000 ounces under the nationalisation order.

At a meeting of the Senate Silver Bloc to-day a resolution was passed appointing a Committee of Five, headed by Senator McCarran, to call on Mr. Morgenthau reasonably promptly and ascertain from him the intentions of the Treasury, and details of its policy, for carrying out the spirit of the Silver Purchase Act.

KIDNAPPERS ARRESTED

Weyerhaeuser Case Suspects

Washington, June 11.

Of the $200,000 ransom paid for the release of little George Weyerhaeuser, son of the millionaire Tacoma, timber operator, $118,000 has already been recovered. It was announced here to-day.

All the money paid to the kidnapers' agents was marked.

The money so far recovered includes $90,000 found buried in a Canyon near Salt Lake City early to-day as a result of a confession by Herman Waley, notorious gangster.

It is believed that the second of the kidnapers' leaders, Mahan the Blacksmith, probably has the balance of the ransom money, or else has hidden it, for by now he must know that to be found with it in his possession would mean certain conviction. As it is he is seriously implicated in the crime, by the confession of Waley and Waley's wife, Margaret.

Reuter.

CHARGES PREPARED

Washington, June 11. Mr. Edgar Hoover, in charge of the special police dealing with the eradication of the gangster menace, has announced that the suspects in the Weyerhaeuser kidnapping case will be charged under the Lindbergh Kidnapping Act. The suspects are Herman Waley and his wife Margaret, and William Mahon, the Blacksmith.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

To Retire From The Fight Game

New York, May 29. William F. Carey, former head of Madison Square Garden, has taken over the Presidency of the new Twentieth Century Sporting Club, founded recently by Mike Jacobs, theatre ticket broker and the earliest and possibly the closest associate of the late Tex Rickard.

While Mr. Carey was formally becoming President at a little gathering in the Club's modest offices off Broadway, reliable quarters reported that the board of directors of Madison Square Garden had secretly decided to give up boxing, and would rent the Eighth Avenue "House That Tex Built" to the highest bidder this autumn.

The highest bidder will probably be Mr. Carey and the Twentieth Century Sporting Club.

It is believed that the Garden will announce its retirement from the boxing field immediately after the Baer-Braddock world title bout.

The Twentieth Century Club will probably take over boxing in the Garden next winter, guar-

OBSTACLES TO PEACE

Italy and Abyssinia

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 29.

"I shall be agreeably surprised if there is not war between Italy and Abyssinia during the present year," said Dr. G. F. Gooch, the historian, when discussing obstacles to peace at a conference of the National Union of Women Teachers at the Imperial Institute, South Kensington, on Saturday. "If there is war between these two," he continued, "I hope and believe it will be localised, but you never know."

Mussolini is a great man with a great brain, a strong will, and a boundless belief in his capacity. He is, I believe, determined to conquer Abyssinia, and if not, indeed, annex the whole country, at any rate to establish something like Italian control over that sole remnant of independence in Africa. Mussolini's policy in Abyssinia is to get what he wants in Abyssinia, whatever it may be, by threat or, if this fails, to thrust forward and make a job of it, and thus get the whole thing over so as to be ready for trouble in Europe, which I happen to know he expects."

ABYSSINIA'S RESISTANCE

Dr. Gooch warned his hearers of the possibility of Abyssinia's putting up a stronger resistance than Mussolini expected, thus compelling him to send more troops to Abyssinia than he had bargained for. This might result in the Nazis in Germany taking advantage of Mussolini's back being turned to join with the Nazis in Austria to bring off the coup which they nearly brought off last year.

Dr. Gooch declared that the two supreme obstacles to peace at the moment were Japanese Imperialism in the Far East, and German dissatisfaction in the heart of Europe. "As far as I can see the peace of Europe now rests in the hands of one single man—Hitler." Germany wanted more territory, and made no secret of this. If the victorious countries were willing to give back to her some of the territory which she lost in 1919, and which she longed for, then there was the possibility of getting Germany back into the collective system.

JAPAN-RUSSIA-GERMANY

Turning to the possibility of war in the Far East, Dr. Gooch said that there was no possible limitation to the advance of Japan right into Mongolia and her becoming, even more than she was to-day, the master of North China. If this happened Japan might then come into conflict with Russia, and one great danger of a Russo-Japanese war was that it might provide the signal for an explosion in Europe. With Russia concentrating her attention on the Far East there was the possibility of Germany in turn seizing more territory for herself with the consent of Poland.

Professor Olive Wheeler, psychologist, said that if they had brutal discipline in the schools they were making for war, because the emotions of the child were being orientated toward brutality. Discipline in the schools had to be through love and regard for the value of human individuals, and not through fear and hatred. One delegate deplored the possibility that teachers might soon be asked to teach children, not about the League of Nations, but how to use gas masks and how to avoid being killed.

"VIGOROUS STEPS" TO BUILD UP THE R.A.F.

Details Of Entry, Training, And Pay

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 25.

Plans for the recruitment of men for the Royal Air Force were made public to-day in the following statement by the Air Ministry:

Consequent on the decision of his Majesty's Government rapidly to expand the R.A.F., it is necessary to take the most vigorous steps to provide the large body of skilled pilots and tradesmen required.

These steps will include:

- 1.—The entry for training of large numbers of personnel.
- 2.—The re-entry of personnel who have passed to the reserve or left the service.
- 3.—The retention in the service of the personnel due to go out in the next two years.

THE MEN REQUIRED

The total entries that will be required in the present and the next succeeding year are approximately:

Pilots—2500.
Tradesmen and unskilled men—20,000.

Of these approximately half will be required before April, 1936.

These entries are far in excess of any the Air Force has had to provide for in the past and the whole-hearted co-operation of the country will be required.

A large proportion of the pilots required will be entered as officers on short service commissions. Young men of good personality and good education (not lower than school certificate standard) and of over 17½ but under 25 years of age are invited to apply in writing to the Air Ministry (S.T.E.), Adastral House, Kingsway, W.C.

PAY AND GRATUITIES

Accepted candidates will be appointed for four years' service on the active list followed by six years' service in the reserve. An opportunity may later be given to them to extend the active list period of their service.

They will receive pay and allowances in cash or kind equivalent to £325 on entry and increasing to £380 after a year's service, and will be entitled on passing to the reserve at the end of their active list service to gratuity at the rate of £100 for each year of such service after the first year.

Increased numbers will also be required of airman pilots. These pilots have hitherto been provided solely from among serving airmen, in the main from those who have entered the service as aircraft apprentices.

FROM SECONDARY SCHOOLS

During the next two years this source will be supplemented to the degree necessary by the direct entry of young men of secondary school education.

The method of application, age limit, and period of service will be the same as those given above for short service officer candidates.

They will receive pay and allowances in cash or kind equivalent to £200 at the outset and increasing to £270 per annum on qualifying as pilots, and will be entitled on passing to the reserve at the end of their active list service to a gratuity at the rate of £25 for each year of such service after the first year.

MAINTENANCE MEN

An entry of about 1300 men a quarter (in addition to the normal entry of aircraft apprentices) is required for duties in connection with the maintenance of aircraft. As many as possible of these should be men with a basic training in fitting in civil life.

Men so qualified and under 42 years of age are invited to apply in writing or in person to the R.A.F. recruiting depot, Victory House, Kingsway, W.C.

If accepted after trade tests they will be enlisted for six years' service on the active list and will be entitled, in addition to free accommodation, clothing, and rations, to pay at the rate of 3s. 8d., 4s. 3d. or 5s. 6d. a day according to the degree of qualification they show on passing out of the initial period of about one year's training.

TRAINING AS MATES

While under training they will receive pay at the rate of 3s. 8d. a day in addition to accommodation.

In addition to these men, who are skilled fitters in civil life, men of superior intelligence will be considered on application to the R.A.F. recruiting depot, for acceptance for training as mates, flight mechanics or flight riggers, preference for selection being given to those with mechanical experience.

Those accepted, who must be over 18 and under 32 years of age, will be enlisted for six years' service on the active list and will pass through a short course of elementary training as mates.

The best of these will go on to a longer course to qualify either as flight mechanics or flight riggers. Rates of pay in this section will vary from 2s. while training to 5s. a day.

In addition to the normal entry of boys, about 400 more every three months will be required from secondary schools to train as armourers, wireless operators or photographers. The entry age in this class is from over 17 to 32 years.

AIRCRAFT HANDS

They will enlist for six years with pay varying from 2s., while training to 5s. a day.

In addition, also, large numbers of unskilled men over 18 and under 26 will be accepted as aircraft hands.

To secure an adequate body of experienced tradesmen who have passed to the reserve or been discharged a provision for a further service of four years for this branch of men has been made, and it is hoped will be taken advantage of. Re-enlistment will be limited to men under the age of 42, but exceptions will be made of men specially required.

Re-enlisted pensioners will, during their service, be specially allowed to continue to draw their pensions in addition to full pay. This ends the statement issued by the Air Ministry.

It was made clear to-day that a special effort will be required to obtain the necessary men.

Previous training is not always essential, men with some mechanical experience, such as garage hands, are acceptable.

BOY ENTRANTS

It will be necessary to increase the number of aircraft apprentices and boy entrants from the present figure of 1020 and 360 boys by about 50 per cent.

Over and above aerodromes envisaged in the existing expansion scheme 31 aerodromes will have to be established.

Pending their completion the fullest use is to be made, not only of service, but civil aerodromes. Temporary hangars, workshops and accommodation will have to be constructed.

The aerodromes will have to be chosen in positions in accordance with a strategic plan.

In the new scheme of expansion under-ground hangars have been considered, but apart from their heavy cost, it is considered that dispersion is a better means of protection than overhead cover.

Fuel and explosives will, however, be stored underground where suitable.

As the expansion of the aircraft industry has been under consideration for some time it is believed that the existing capacity of this industry can supply immediate needs without the adoption of special reorganisation measures.

In any case, the Air Ministry is in consultation with the aircraft industry with a view to a speed-up of production, the industry having a free hand.

Between next October and next March five new flying training schools are expected to come into operation, in addition to the five already existing.

Potatoes In Airy Mood

Details of the method of cooking souffles potatoes, and as these are sometimes a little troublesome unless they are very carefully done.

It is best to use waxy potatoes as possible, and they should be a little larger than what we should call medium-sizes. They must be without any specks; carefully attention should be paid to cutting the slices; the frying fat must be plentiful, and while the first frying should be done in moderate hot fat, the second must be in fat very hot indeed. If the instruction are observed the potatoes should "puff" properly.

The slices of potato must be cut absolutely regular, and their thickness should be just under a quarter of an inch. It is better to cut the potatoes into oblong cubes, so that you can be sure of all the pieces being the same size, that is, a thin oblong of the width indicated. The best size is about three inches by two.

When they are all sliced, have the fat heated to a moderate heat; that is to say, hot enough to surround a small piece of bread dropped in it with a slight bubbling.

ONE BY ONE

Drop the slices in one by one, and do not let them stick together or they will not puff later.

Keep them separated gently with a slice, but do not bruise them, and let the fat get slowly hotter.

At the end of seven or eight minutes the slices will come to the surface and float there. They are then done.

Now let the fat, heat very quickly, so that in a few moments it is smoking (but not burning), and as the potatoes get golden coloured and swell out, take them out carefully with a slice and put them into a trying-basket. When they are all in, make the fat as hot as possible, and plunge the basket deep down into the fat. As soon as it has touched the bottom take the pan off the fire, and leave the potatoes in the hot fat for one minute only. Take them out with your slices, and drain them on a cloth or kitchen paper. Sprinkle them lightly with salt and serve them, preferably on a serviette.

There may be two reasons why the potatoes do not puff up, one is that in the first process they have been cooked too much, and the second cooked too little. They should be soft enough to yield under the finger's pressure. But when they are well done, they are so nice and often so exciting that this long explanation will be found worth while.

Sweetbreads Are Good

Sweetbreads—usually reserved for the invalid or the convalescent—make a pleasant change in family menus. They are specially good cooked with mushrooms.

Blanch the sweetbreads for seven or eight minutes in boiling water, and remove any fat or gristle. Put them into a pan with enough white stock to cover, and stew gently until cooked, adding a piece of ham or bacon to give flavour. Meanwhile peel and slice some mushrooms and fry them in butter until tender. When the sweetbreads are cooked, take them up, cut into dice, and mix with the mushrooms.

Thicken the sweetbread liquor with cornflour, mix in a little tomato-puree (skinned and pulped tomatoes, seasoned to taste) then add the sweetbread and mushroom mixture, and stir in about half a gill of cream. Divide the mixture into scallop shells, sprinkle with breadcrumbs, pour over a little melted butter, and brown in the oven.

TWO UNUSUAL MEAT DISHES FROM NORWAY

Norwegian cooking is unusual in the unique blending of flavors employed. Spices are blended in familiar dishes so that they assume a new and delectable guise. This distinctive blend of flavours is used most notably in meat dishes. The two recipes given here are typical examples of Norwegian cookery.

NORWEGIAN MEAT BALLS

1½ lbs. ground round steak
1 lb. ground lean pork
1 large onion, grated
2 even tps. cornstarch
Salt and pepper to taste
2 tsp. ground mace
1 cup milk

Blend the above ingredients thoroughly make into balls and fry in butter, turning constantly till all sides are an even brown. Then cover with hot water and let simmer, covered, for one hour. The gravy should then be thickened with flour. Serve with whole boiled potatoes and green beans.

PORK BALLS

2 lbs. ground pork shoulder
2 even tps. cornstarch
Salt and pepper to taste
1 tsp. sage, rubbed fine
1 cup milk, boiled and cooled
Form into balls, roll in flour and brown on all sides. Cover with hot water and simmer until done.

SWEETBREADS FROM THE GRILL

Blanch the sweetbreads in boiling water, simmer them gently in a little white stock flavoured with bacon or ham. Take up when cooked, drain dry, and grill them on both sides. Strain and thicken the stock, flavour to taste, and pour this round the sweetbreads in a hot entree dish.

FOR THE INVALID

The doctor's permission must be asked before serving this dish, as it contains vegetables.

Blanch the sweetbreads, drain, and remove fat or gristle. Peel a carrot, a turnip and an onion, cut into dice, and put them into a pan with a few cloves and some pepper and salt. Add the sweetbreads, and pour in stock to cover. Simmer slowly until the stock is absorbed, add the same quantity of stock again, and pour in more stock to cover together with a teaspoonful of washed pearl barley. Cook again until the stock is a thick sauce, take up, arrange the sweetbreads on a hot dish and pour the vegetables and gravy over them.

SPICED MEAT BALLS

Another version of the beef and pork combination is as follows. These meat balls are ideal to serve hot at a buffet supper as they may be prepared in advance and baked at the last minute.

2 lbs. ground round steak
1 lb. ground lean pork
1 cup mashed potatoes
1 cup milk
1 tsp. allspice
1 tsp. ground cloves
1 tsp. nutmeg, ground
1 tsp. brown sugar
Blend ingredients into small balls and roll in flour. Brown on all sides in butter. Place in baking pan and set aside until about one hour before needed, when they should be covered with a pint of cream and baked in a moderate oven for one hour.

PINEAPPLE FINGERS

1 recipe rich tea biscuits
1 cup finely chopped candied pineapple
Add chopped pineapple to dry ingredients when making rich tea biscuit dough. Roll out ¼ inch thick. Sprinkle with granulated sugar. Cut into small finger-shaped pieces. Bake as directed. Serve with fruit salads or for afternoon tea.

Jellied Fruit Desserts

APRICOT MOLD

1 package lemon gelatin
1½ cups warm water
1 cup apricot juice
Dash of salt
2½ cups canned apricots, sliced
Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Add apricot juice and salt. Chill until thickened. Fold in apricots. Turn into ring mold. Chill until firm. Serve with or without whipped cream as a dessert. Or unmold on crisp lettuce, garnish with mayonnaise, and serve as salad.

FRUIT SYMPHONY

1 package lemon gelatin
1 cup warm water
1 cup fruit juices and water
Dash of salt
2 cups grapefruit, free from membrane, diced, and drained
1 cup orange, free from membrane, diced, and drained
1 cup canned crushed pineapple, drained
Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Add fruit juices and water and salt. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in fruit. Turn into individual molds. Chill until firm.

DESSERT NOVELTY

2 bottles Coca-Cola
1 cup water
1 package lemon or raspberry gelatin
1 teaspoon salt
Add 1 bottle Coca-Cola to water and heat in double boiler. Add gelatin and salt and stir until dissolved. Cool. Add second bottle Coca-Cola. Turn into molds. Chill until firm. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired.

JELLIED ORANGE DESSERT

4 oranges, sections free from membrane and diced
1 cup sugar
1 package orange gelatin
1½ cups warm water
Combine oranges and sugar and let stand 10 minutes. Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Pour over oranges. Chill, stirring occasionally. Serve in sherbet glasses.

LAYERED PEACH AND BANANA MOLD

1 package lime gelatin
1 pint warm water
1 cup canned peaches, sliced
1 banana, sliced
Dissolve gelatin in warm water. Arrange sliced peaches on bottom of mold. Pour on warm gelatin, being careful not to disarrange peaches. Add banana. Chill until firm. Unmold. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired.

SPINACH OMELETTE

This is rather elaborate in so far as it requires the making of three omelettes. Cook some spinach in branches, and season it with salt and pepper, seeing that it is very well drained.

Make a cheese omelette, lay it flat on your dish and cover it with half the spinach.

Cook another omelette, put the rest of the spinach on this, and then cover the whole thing with the last omelette of all. Sprinkle this with grated cheese, and put the dish in the oven for a minute or two.

When frying cold potatoes, slice them and dredge thoroughly with flour. There is practically no waste from bits, and the flavour is certainly improved.

Before beating eggs, rinse out the bowl in cold water, and leave a little water in it. When the eggs are poured out of the bowl, they will come out cleanly, preventing waste, and making washing-up easier. Also, the eggs are easier to beat if this is done.

VEGETABLE SALAD

1 cup sliced tomato
1 cup chopped cabbage
1 cup chopped carrots
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers
1 cup sliced radishes
1 tablespoon chopped onions
1 cup French dressing
Mix ingredients. Cover with plate and chill several hours. Mix well and serve on lettuce.

TRY THESE

ROCKY MOUNTAIN COOLER (for one)

Ingredients.—1 fresh egg, 1 teaspoon sugar, juice of 1 lime, 1 small bottle cider, 4 drops bitters, dust of nutmeg.

Have ready a thin tumbler. Dissolve the sugar in a table-spoon of boiling water, then cool. Beat the egg thoroughly, put it in the tumbler, then add to it the dissolved sugar, bitters, and strained lime juice. Fill up with cold cider, dust the top of the "cooler" very lightly with powdered nutmeg, and serve at once. If liked, a table-spoon of brandy may also be added.

NOON SHADE

Ingredients for one.—1 table-spoon sugar, 1 table-spoon lime juice, 1 small tea-spoon bitters, 2 knobs of ice, 1 small bottle ginger ale.

Measure sugar into a half pint tumbler, add lime juice, and stir till dissolved. Add bitters, then quickly pour in a small bottle of Dry Ginger Ale, and serve at once. Ginger beer, being cheaper may be used, in which case, omit the sugar.

TONIC COCKTAIL

Ingredients for two.—1 large bottle tonic water, 1 table-spoon Angostura bitters, 1 thick slice yellow lime, with peel, 4 lumps of ice, tiny pinch salt.

Cut two rather thick from the centre of a yellow lime or lemon. Cut across, very nearly in two, and set a slice of fruit astride the rim of each tumbler. Put two pieces of ice and a grain or two of salt into each tumbler, add half the bitters, quickly pour over the tonic water, and serve at once.

JUNKETS

Junket is a useful sweet for the hot weather, consisting as it does of milk in a most digestible and tempting form. The ordinary variety seems to require the addition of cream, stewed fruit, or jam, whereas the following variations may be served alone. For coffee junket dissolve three table-spoonsful of sugar in half a breakfast-cupful of strong, clear coffee, add a pint of milk flavoured with a few drops of vanilla, and warm over gentle heat. When lukewarm, stir in a table-spoonful of rennet, pour it into a pretty dish, and allow it to stand for at least twenty minutes. For chocolate-junket, grate three ounces of plain chocolate into a quarter of a pint of milk. When dissolved, stir into it a pint of sweetened milk and proceed as for coffee junket.

BANANA CHOCOLATE CAKE

1 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
2 bananas sliced
3 eggs
2½ cups cake flour
1 teaspoon salt 1 cup water
2½ teaspoons baking powder
3 table-spoons cocoa
1 cup evaporated milk diluted with 1 cup water.
Cream shortening, add sugar. Add bananas and beat. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with diluted milk. Bake in three layers 15 to 20 minutes in a moderate oven. Frost with chocolate butter icing.

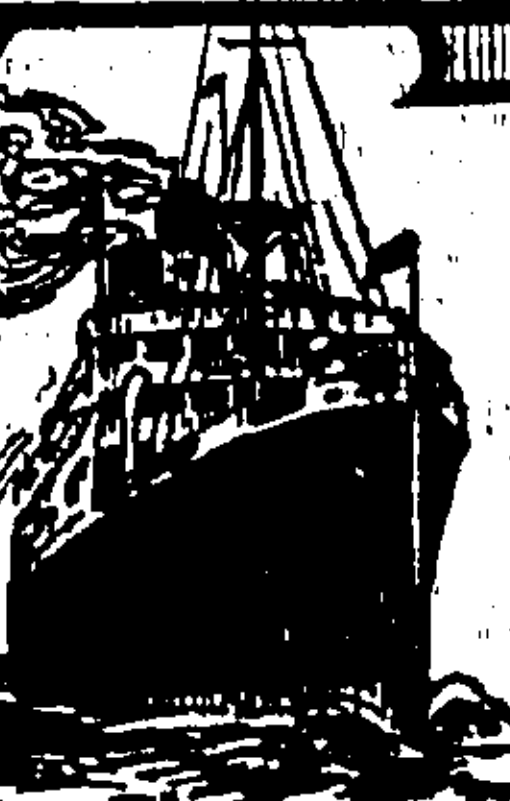

CHOCOLATE BUTTER ICING

6 table-spoons butter
3 cups sifted confectioner's sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2½ ounces unsweetened chocolate melted
2 table-spoons milk
Cream butter, add 1 cup sugar and cream together thoroughly. Add vanilla and chocolate. Add remaining sugar gradually, beating well after each addition. Thin with milk till the right consistency to spread.

THE DUKE OF GLOUCESTER

At St. Paul's Service

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 29.

Major-General the Earl of Athlone was ceremonially installed Chancellor of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George at the annual service of the Order, in St. Paul's Cathedral, yesterday.

The Duke of Gloucester, a new Knight Grand Cross of the Order, was present, and his banner, and that of Sir Horace Rumbold, were affixed in the Chapel in the Cathedral. The Duke's banner has, over the Royal arms, a heraldic "label" with three "points, on the outer two, a St. George's Cross and on the middle one a red lion.

The brilliant mantles, Saxon-blue with a scarlet lining, of Knights Grand Cross, the full dress military and naval uniforms, the levee and court dress of the members, presented a spectacle of vivid colours led by the choir and clergy of St. Paul's, and followed by the Chancellor and the Prelate, the Bishop of Salisbury in cope and mitre of gold, the Knights and Companions of Salisbury walked in procession to the places they occupied during the service.

SQUIRES WITH THE BANNERS

Before the Earl of Athlone, the Duke of Gloucester, and Sir Horace Rumbold, walked their squires—Capt. Birch Reynardson, Capt. Howard Kerr, and Mr. Anthony Rumbold—carrying their respective banners. The banner of Earl Buxton, the late Chancellor, which had been removed from its place in the Chapel, was borne by Sir Aubrey Smith.

When all were in their places the banner of the late Chancellor was handed to the King of Arms, who in turn, handed it to the Prelate who laid it upon the altar.

This was followed by the solemn Commemoration of the members of the Order whose deaths had been notified in the past year, the names being read out by the Gentleman Usher of the Blue Rod. They included: Marshal Lyatney, Sir James O'Grady, and Col. John Ward, "the Navy M.P." Altogether, there had died four Knights Grand Cross, 22 Knights Commanders, and 103 Companions.

Then the Band of the Scots Guards played Chopin's funeral march, while the whole congregation stood.

After the Benediction, the members of the Order again formed a procession and walked from their places in the Choir and under the Dome, into the south choir aisle, where they were dismissed with a blessing by the Prelate.

MAHARAJAH of BARODA'S DIAMOND JUBILEE

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 25.

In celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of his rule of a State as large as Wales—the Maharajah Gaekwar of Baroda gave a small luncheon party at the Dorchester Hotel yesterday.

The Maharajah succeeded, by adoption, the deposed Maharajah Mahabharao Gaekwar on May 27, 1875. Some 18 months later, at the age of 14, he was present—as a large painting in St. James's Palace shows—at the Delhi Durbar to proclaim Queen Victoria Empress of India. The Maharajah's frequent travel and constant study have given him the wide outlook and the practical mind which he has brought to bear both on the progressive administration of his State and on the problems of Indian social and economic progress. His speeches—available to the public in three volumes, the last of them published a few months ago—show how often he has been ahead of current Indian thought. The Maharajah has been forceful and courageous in his attacks, begun in early life, on injurious Indian social customs not only by speech but in administration. The advance on which he looks back with most satisfaction is that of being the pioneer in modern India of free and compulsory education.

(Lute), Hans Snigula (Spinettino) Gerhard Rittchel (Violin) Ulrich Gebel (Flute), Gerh. Haspar (Horn).

12.15 a.m.—News in English on DJQ and in Dutch DJB.

11.30 p.m.—Folk songs from the German Provinces and Borderlands. Performers: Kees Veenling (Voice), Tony Jsskel (Germ., Engl.).

THE QUEEN

Saves Baby And Woman

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 25.

But for the Queen, a woman with a baby in her arms might have been seriously hurt yesterday.

During a surprise drive which the King and Queen made in North-West and West London, the mother and infant were in danger of being swept by the surging crowd in Manchester-road, North Kensington, against the side of the royal car.

The Queen noticed her distress, and she held up her hand, as though to warn the wildly-cheering people of the woman's peril.

The crowd saw the kindly gesture, and those in front pushed back so that, until the car had passed, mother and baby were safe from being forced into its side.

As the car went on the Queen half turned to reassure herself that both were safe, and then smiled.

It was the Queen's sixty-eighth birthday yesterday. She had intended to remain in the Palace, but in view of the perfect day it was decided to visit those parts of North-West and West London not included in the official drive.

With the King and Queen were the Princess Royal and Princess Margaret, a dainty figure in pale blue.

At first the little Princess seemed overawed, but soon was waving and laughing back to the excited people.

It was obvious that the King enjoyed every minute of his drive. He repeatedly waved his hand and took off his hat.

From Wood-lane and Weston-avenue the car went to Goldhawk-road, then past Shepherd's Bush and Holland Park to Notting Hill Gate.

In honour of the Queen's birthday a family luncheon party was held at Buckingham Palace.

"TRIBUTE OF LOVE"

In reply to a message from the Lord Mayor of London the Queen sent a telegram in which she said: "I cannot refrain from assuring you how deeply touched I have been in these past few weeks by the demonstrations of loyalty towards the King and the Royal Family. Such a tribute of love and devotion towards those near and dear to me will for ever be treasured by me with heartfelt gratitude."

On Saturday the King and Queen made their third Jubilee State drive, this time through the East of London.

END OF A NAVAL TITLE?

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 25.

It is expected in naval circles that there will soon be no more Commodores, First Cuss, in the Royal Navy.

At present there is one. He is Captain Robert Raikes, Chief of Staff to the Commander-in-Chief, Mediterranean Fleet. He was given the title, which is honorary, because he was not, as is usually the case, a Rear-admiral when appointed to his post. When he is relieved by Captain Edward Collins on October 30, he will relinquish it.

Captain Edward Collins is likely to be promoted Rear-admiral before then.

A Commodore First Class, is distinguishable from a Rear-admiral only by his flag, which is a broad pendant.

THE KING'S WIRELESS VOICE

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 25.

King George is included in the short list of good wireless speakers prepared by Professor Zimmermann, the leading American speech expert.

His list is small. Only two women are in it. They are Miss Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labour, and the late Jane Addams.

President Roosevelt is described as the best wireless speaker in the world, with a perfect rhythm and a clear, unrestrained articulation.

Mr. Huey Long has "a roundness and depth which make him sound convincing."

Lowest on the list comes Father Coughlin, who draws the biggest broadcast audience in the States. He is described as ministerial and unnatural.

SKY PILOTING

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 29.

I learn that Imperial Airways is considering a plan for the training of some of its pilots in navigation by celestial observation, that is, observation of the sun, moon and stars, writes a correspondent. At present air navigation is chiefly by terrestrial observation and compass.

Sailors use celestial observation for navigation. It would be very useful on the Atlantic air route.

The pilots who would be trained for it would take the first-class navigators' certificate. This, which some five pilots hold, requires a knowledge of higher mathematics.

NEW DESTROYERS

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 25.

CINEMA TRADE NOTICES

THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING

It is our guess that "The Whole Town's Talking" which is the next change at the Queen's Theatre will be a hit. Unsurpassed in entertainment value and boasting one of the outstanding performances of the year in the serio-comic characterization by Edward G. Robinson. "The Whole Town's Talking" is a robust, exciting and hilarious comedy-drama. It is a decided success, and one that will keep the whole town talking for a long time.

The story concerns the hilarious adventures of an inoffensive frightened little clerk who is mistaken for the country's most sought-after gangster. He is given a "passport" by the authorities to identify him at all times. His gangster counterpart, however, frightens the clerk into hiding nights while he uses the "passport" to carry on his criminal activities. Jones, the clerk finally develops an undomesticated courage when his dream-love, the lovely Jean Arthur, is kidnapped by the gangster. In a startling and sensational climax he captures the criminal, wins the girl and discovers to his own satisfaction that he's a man's man.

Others in the cast of this fast-paced, thrilling comedy drama are Wallace Ford, Arthur Hill, Arthur Byron, Donald Meek and John Wray. They lend excellent support to the principal players.

HAVE A HEART

A new star has skyrocketed in to the Hollywood heavens, and in the vivid brilliance of her performance Jean Parker with the highest screen laurels with her first starring vehicle, "Have a Heart" The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production showing at the Oriental Theatre, to-morrow and Saturday.

The story of her romance with James Dunn, playing Jimmie Flaherty, employee of an ice cream company whose heart is as warm as his product is cold, is a blend of wholesome simplicity packed with pathos and comedy.

Dunn contributes one of the outstanding performances of his career, and is an ideal romantic screen partner for Miss Parker.

Hilarious comedy relief is supplied by Una Merkel and Stuart Edwin who are again teamed in antics that won bursts of laughter from the audience. Muriel Evans scores in a small role as Helen, the vamping secretary.

Firmness and conviction are added to the cast by Willard Robertson, as Schaubert, manager of the ice-cream company. Edward Brophy adds more comedy as a super-salesman, and Paul Page handles an unsympathetic role with skill, as the young suitor who leaves Miss Parker when she is crippled.

THE LEMON DROP KID

At Alhambra

The dynamic Lee Tracey is featured in "The Lemon Drop Kid" which started its run at the Alhambra Theatre yesterday.

Tracy to the part of a "Horse" gentleman, who induces a millionaire to back a horse which falls to turn up at the winning post in the order he so confidently predicted.

He is then forced to the conclusion that a change of climate would probably be necessary for his health and finally finishes up in a small town where the only horses pulled carts and were a source of worry to no-one but their owners. However a little bit of this town went a long way, and friend Lee has just decided that he has had enough when he meets a girl and then discovers that horses are not by any means the chief causes of trouble.

The cast includes, in addition to Tracy, Helen Mack as the Girl, Minna Gombell, William Frawley, H. B. Walthall and last but not least, Baby Leroy.

Damon Runyon, author of several Cinema hits write the story and the Director was Marshall Neilan. "Lemon Drop Kid" will provide fans with a hour and a half of pleasant entertainment. Tracy is once again seen in some quick witted dialogue sequences. N.A.E.

HELLDORADO

At The King's

Boasting of a notable cast and with thrilling sequences, the new Fox picture "Hellorado" now showing at the King's Theatre will afford film fans the opportunity of seeing once again the famous combination of producer-director in the new Jesse L. Lasky-James Cruze production.

"Hellorado" is the story of a group of eleven stranded strangers, cut off from the world by cloudburst and flood, who find adventure and romance in an abandoned California ghost town. More particularly, it is the story of a beautiful young heiress, the millionaire who is about to marry her, and the footloose young adventurer who teaches her that she is just a woman after all.

There is a modern gold rush as a climax to this vivid story with armies of hungry gold seekers sweeping down upon the old deserted town, now but a shell of former glory.

Richard Arlen and Madge Evans play the young adventurer and the heiress with outstanding skill and prominent in their support are such important players as Ralph Bellamy, James Gleason, Henry B. Walthall, Helen Jerome Eddy, Berton Churchill and Stepin Fetchit.

With the picture is seen on the stage that delightful company. The Mezey Revue in a series of dances, songs and comic aerobatics which all go to make up a delightful and entertaining programme. —O. M. O.

MINISTERS ON THE FILMS.

Mr. Chamberlain The Star

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 29.
On Thursday morning an audience of Cabinet Ministers, M.P.s, candidates, and agents saw the premiere of the new propaganda film of the National Government. In the front row of the Carlton Cinema sat the Prime Minister, near by sat Sir John Simon, Mr. Elliot, and other celebrities intent on seeing themselves as others are going to see them.

The films are divided into those in which a Minister is discovered sitting at a desk and speaks, with only an occasional downward glance at his manuscript, while the camera moves closer and closer. The camera has treated various Ministers with different degrees of justice and mercy. The Prime Minister's voice is effective, but his pose was sombre, and his script lacked clarity. Sir John Simon's height has been exaggerated by the camera, which evidently was pointed slightly upwards, and so distorts the perspective and gives the hands undue prominence.

Mr. Chamberlain is the star. "What, another surplus?" he exclaims, giving a delighted bounce in his chair, and then enthusiastically explains his Budget.

Mr. Baldwin's film is more imaginative in conception. An aerial view of Parliament, then Mr. Baldwin starts discussing the achievements of the Government. Gradually Mr. Baldwin's face dissolves like the Cheshire cat—instead of the smile, the voice remains—and is replaced by miners going to work. As he discusses each industry, views of it are shown. In the industrial views and in the films on agriculture and Scotland the photography is magnificent.

The films of this illustrational type are far the most effective. There is a fine conclusion to one film, where "the wheels of industry" are shown in operation; spindles, cranks move with increasing velocity, while a homely Scottish voice asks the voters not to delay this industrial recovery.

"THE MIGHTY BARNUM"

It's a pity the great P. T. Barnum didn't live to share the fun that Wallace Beery and a pair of Hollywood scenarists had preparing "The Mighty Barnum." 20th Century's screen story of the world's greatest showman, which comes to the King's Theatre on Saturday. For Barnum was, by his own admission, a man who loved a practical joke.

"Barnum had the typical Yankee sense of humour of his Connecticut boyhood," say Gene Fowler and Bess Meredyth, who concocted the screen play, "and it carried through to the very end of his life. In his day humour which did not carry at least a modicum of physical discomfort to the object of the joke just wasn't humour."

"Even when he was the butt of the prank, Barnum was not without appreciation for the ingenuity involved in it." He recites with relish in his autobiography the tale of the time when the head of a show he was travelling with pointed him out to a mob of irate villagers as a murderer they were hunting with intent to lynch. Barnum's new suit was ruined and he was almost strung up before the perpetrator of the prank saved him. And yet he seems to have borne the man no malice.

And with no less alacrity he confesses to being taken in by a man who sold him a valuable oil painting of Jenny Lind which turned out to be a cheap, varnished lithograph, and how he once offered to buy from his home town a piece of salt meadow that he himself had owned for several years.

So the man who introduced the Swedish Nightingale to this country, who made fortunes from the midge General Tom Thumb, the Cardiff Giant and the Wild Man from Borneo and who coined the statistical axiom that "there's a sucker born every minute" will be shown on the screen in this Joseph

"YOU'RE TELLING ME"

It's all in fun, of course, but if "You're Telling Me," the Paramount film starring W. C. Fields, which comes to the Alhambra Theatre on Friday, is to be relied upon, then the millennium has arrived.

"For as a feather-brained inventor, Fields has perfected non-upsettable drinking glasses, a non-sliding golf ball, non-melting high-ball ice and various other human aids for which man has been waiting since time immemorial."

Of course, some of them are patterned after the trick Babe Goldberg devices, but they're in the picture nevertheless. Among the film brain-children, which Fields demonstrates are a murder chair, a device for blowing out matches and an aid to easy breathing. Fields explains the murder chair in this wise:

"You see, when a burglar comes in and says 'Stick 'em up,' you become friendly with him, ask him to have a drink and invite him to sit down in this chair. His weight releases a lever and this iron ball flies up from the back of the chair, smites him on the scone and kills him deadlier than a doornail."

In "You're Telling Me," Fields who is supported by a well-rounded cast including Larry "Buster" Crabbe, Joan Marsh and Adrienne Ames, doesn't get very far with his inventions until he meets a regal princess from a European country, who sets the town right about him. And then, when one of his gags does hit, why he's the big shot for sure, and his daughter is accepted by the banker's son.

M. Schenck presentation in the light he would have preferred. That, at least, is the conviction of the authors of this colorful film story in which Adolphe Menjou, Virginia Bruce, Rochelle Hudson, and Janet Beecher are also importantly cast.

FINE GESTURE BY PRINCE

Friendship With Germany

London, June 11.

The Prince of Wales in addressing the "Old Comrades" as he called the ex-service men of the British Legion at their conference in London to-day, made cordial reference to the German Nation.

The "idea of a deputation from the Legion going to Germany has commended itself to me, said the Prince. I feel there could be no more suitable body to stretch forth the hand of friendship to the Germans than we, ex-service men, who fought them—and have forgotten all about it—in the Great War."

The Prince said he had discussed this suggestion with the President of the Legion, Major General Sir Frederick Maurice. His proposal was greeted with loud cheers.

The Prince also referred to the various activities of the Legion including the finding of work for the ex-servicemen, helping those in special trouble and providing clothes and other forms of assistance to the unemployed in the distressed areas. He expressed himself as heartily in favour of bringing the younger generation into their ranks to carry on the organisation of this work. "For, he said, we are none of us getting any younger."

GERMAN PRESS PLEASED

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegrams, Messages, Ordinance, 289.)

Received, June 12, 4.30 p.m.)

Berlin, June 12.

An appeal in favour of an Anglo-German understanding, made by the Prince of Wales at the annual assembly of the British Legion, was warmly welcomed by the press here. The frank statement by the heir to the British throne, which certainly was not made without the government's consent says "Berliner Lokalanzeiger" in a front page leader, clearly shows the change of view which is taking place in England and which particularly is evidenced by the demands made by the Dominion Premiers on the occasion of the King's Jubilee.

The front line soldier who learned to respect the enemy is the best mediator when war and hatred is to be overcome. The heir to the throne spoke as the front line soldier and his words were more than mere gestures. The spirit shown by them and the British War Veterans League's applause is the best start for the forthcoming negotiations.

Similar sentiments were expressed by "Berliner Tageblatt" which says, "for a long time it had been clearly understood by all classes of the German people that the various front line soldiers' associations were better able than anybody else to supplement the efforts of high diplomacy as ambassadors of goodwill between the nations. The forthcoming visit of the British war veterans gains special significance in view of the fact that was announced by the Prince of Wales personally. Transocean-Kuo Min."

FILM OF AN OLD PLAY

"Drake of England"

(Special Air Mail Service)

The English cinema will soon be as full of representations of monarchs as the galleries of Madame Tussaud, and in "Drake of England," at the Regal this week the figures seem to have come straight from that institution. They move, of course, but mechanically. They are figures, not, as they should be, living interpretations of past personages. The character of Elizabeth and the story of Drake would lend themselves well to the modern handling of history. But the director and scenarists of Eelstree are unwilling so to handle it, and taking an old-fashioned play they film it in an old-fashioned manner.

The story of this new British film is that of the play "Drake," by Louis N. Parker. It was last seen in London rather more than twenty years ago, and the atmosphere caught in this film is of that period of the theatre and not of the Elizabethan ages. Consequently it is useless to complain that the buildings and gardens lack authenticity, and that the breastplates come from no armoury but a wardrobe. This is a picture of a play which was written to be produced in a theatrical fashion. But things which, in the theatre, look right because they belong to the theatre have a habit of looking wrong on the screen.

TRUTH AND LIES IN HISTORY

Interesting Talk At Rotary Club Meeting

The following is the continuation of Rotarian R. T. Barrett's discourse on "Truth and Lies in History" at the Rotary Club:

I am now going to turn to an odd phenomenon of human history upon which modern research is throwing curious light, namely witchcraft in Europe during the Middle Ages down to the end of the 17th century, when it disappears.

We all know the witch of the fairy tale, an old crone with her magic wand, and her black cat, and we all know that over many centuries, thousands of men and women were put to death for witchcraft—for selling themselves to the Evil One who was supposed to give them in return great and malign powers. We all know that there were witches' sabbaths, where members of the cult met to worship the Evil One, to celebrate hideous rites, including a travesty of the Christian Mass, and to work magic against their enemies, by making clay images of them, and stuffing the images with thorns or needles.

Now what lay behind their apparently childish and degenerate practices? Most of us dismiss the witches' sabbath as a surreptitious revolt against the dull respectability of small town or village life, and this, to some extent, it was. On the other hand the witch was seldom a bright young thing, but generally an old crone, with, we imagine a bullying tongue, and a turn for fortune telling probably backed by hypnotic and mediumistic gifts.

WIDER EXPLANATION

One can well imagine what power such a personality would wield in a little isolated place, like a small up-country walled village of modern China. We have only to call to mind a rich and indomitable old dowager ruling her children, her grandchildren and servants with the lash of her tongue.

Now recent research—and I am indebted to both to Frazer's Golden Bough and a remarkable book, The God of the Witches, by Margaret Murray, D. Litt and Fellow of London University, who suggests a wider and more interesting explanation.

Miss Murray's theory is this. The conversion to Christianity of the tribes who over-ran Europe after the Break-up of the Roman Empire was much less complete either than the old historians, mainly monastic, and their later interpreters, would have us suppose.

Witchcraft was in its essence, it is suggested, the organised worship of the old nature gods.

Satan, with his horns, hoofs and tail, is of course, not the subtle intellectual adversary of the New Testament, but the god Pan, the horned god, who in one form or another continued to be devoutly worshipped by no small minority of the people of Europe.

THE OLD FAITH AND NEW
Throughout the Middle Ages there was implacable war between the devotees of the old faith and the new—and many people, including members of the Royal houses, priests and even bishops dabbled with both camps. The great feature of the witches' sabbath, is the appearance of the goat-headed god. It is suggested that this is in direct descent from the rites illustrated in Cave Men drawings of goats and bulls dancing like men, from the animal gods of Egypt, and the Bacchic processions of Greece and Rome.

"The God Incarnate" was represented at the rites by a man, the local chief of the cult, wearing a mask, not unlike the masks of a Nice Carnival or a modern Chinese procession. Needless to say simple people thought that it actually was the god who was among them.

This tangible appearance of the god Incarnate, amid impressive ritual was thus the centre of the witches' sabbath, which also included many of the old "fertility rites", when by sympathetic magic, the earth was helped and induced to yield her increase. They were not in origin the mere orgies which they become in later and sophisticated times. It is interesting to note in passing that some of our nursery games, especially the ring games, like "here-we-go-round-the-mulberry bush" and the more adult "Kiss in the ring" are innocent descendants of the witches' rites.

The ancient faith was well knit in the middle ages, and had its central national figures, in whom great power was vested. Among its chief adherents were the little colonies of small, darkish people, the survivors of the old Neolithic pre-Celtic race, who, later, when they had disappeared, become under the imaginative pens of romancers, especially Shakespeare, the brownies, the fairies and the little people of nursery tales. I might point out that in the isolated Sussex village where I spent my childhood there were still two distinct types, the big blonde Germanic people, and a small dark folk who seemed instinctively to keep to themselves.

The unit of witchcraft called the coven, was a group of thirteen, including the God Incarnate, and an officer known as "The Maid".

The king of a country was often the head of the cult, which, in early times comprised so large a proportion of his loyal subjects, and the members of the Royal coven, notably the Maid, were people of the greatest importance. All offices were open to either sex, except that of the maid, which had to be held by a woman.

One of the badges of the cult was like a special form of garter, a garment that figures rather largely in mystery and legend.

ORDER OF THE GARTER

You know the story of the founding of the Order of the Garter, and when Edward III made this famous remark, "honi mal qui mal y pense," because a lady dropped her garter, Miss Murray suggests that to suppose a court assembly of that or any age would be upset by the dropping of a garter is ridiculous, but the said garter was an emblem of the witches' cult—to which both the King and the lady in question belonged. He probably founded the Order of the Garter, as a sort of bodyguard to protect her, and as a gesture of defiance to the Church. It is significant that there were 24 knights, plus the King and Prince of Wales—or two coven.

Occasional human sacrifice was part of the witches cult and Miss Murray puts forward the idea that William Rufus of England, a very fine King, loved by the people, was head of the cult, and his death by an arrow that struck him while hunting in the New Forest accepted in the role of Royal victim. In Nature worship all the World over, the King—or a substitute—has to be sacrificed to the gods at stated times.

Still more startling is the theory that Joan of Arc was the Maid first of her province of Lorraine and then of the Royal Coven of France. That was why she was called—"The Maid", why the people of France, who had largely gone over to nature worship during the miseries of the Hundred years War, rose so unanimously in her support; why the Court accepted her, and then, finally, why she was abandoned because all saw in her the accepted victim of the nature gods. Joan was persistently accused of witchcraft and of trifling with the fairies, or dancing with them, and of being converted of their cult through her godmother, against whom the same charges were made. The theory—to me personally, it is no more, as I am not in a position to do original research—is used to explain Joan's predictions of her own fate, her success, the hostility of the Church, which recognised the exact nature of her position in the cult, and her desertion by great-hearted friends like Dunols and Gilles de Rais, who had been her wholehearted supporters. They, like the peasantry, saw in her the personification and the ultimate victim of the old gods who had come to the aid of France against the English invaders.

BOGUS CONFESSION

The gallant Gilles de Rais, executed by history as Bluebeard, was, it is argued, Joan's successor as Royal victim. When the time came he too was abandoned to his ecclesiastical opponents, and when the charges of vice and heresy against him seemed to flag, seeking death he made a bogus confession of enormities, patently ridiculous. He confessed as you

EXTRADITION CASE

Further evidence in the extradition proceedings against Tong Wan-kui alias Tong Chan-mung was heard at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon before Mr. W. Schofield. Mr. F. X. d'Almada (Sar.) called other witnesses for the defence, the first of whom was Mr. H. F. da Luz, acting secretary of the Hong Kong, Canton and Macau Steamboat Co., who testified that on November 16, 1932 amongst the names on the passenger list travelling by first class from Canton to Hong Kong, was the name of De Jong which was supposed to have been the name given by the fugitive, but it did not correspond with the name on the card which he handed to the purser on board the Lungshan at the time when he purchased his ticket. The name on the card was D. C. Jong. On being questioned by Mr. d'Almada, witness said that it was not likely that the purser would have made a mistake when writing down the fugitive's name when he only had to copy it from the card.

Chun Ngan Kwan, concubine of the accused, also gave evidence as well as Lam Sheung the accused's sister-in-law after which the hearing was adjourned.

probably know to the murder of 800 children. The story, his execution, and his final speech to the sympathetic mob, who should have been tearing him to pieces, suggest not the righteous hanging of an incredible monster but the willing death of a martyr.

Under increasing persecution the cult, always cruel and barbaric, undoubtedly became debased and hideous. The common people as they became Christianised, turned against it, but even to the last the witches, as late as the reign of Charles II, died more like martyrs than devotees of fraud and debauchery.

CHINA'S HISTORY

I have taken you far afield from the current affairs usually discussed at a Rotary meeting, from silver, piece goods and armaments. And yet an understanding of the affairs of to-day, especially the affairs of the East, cannot but be helped by the accurate history of old wars, of beliefs and customs, some dead, and many lingering still. I have tried to suggest how history is being re-written by study of the records and sifting of evidence, instead of repeating what the older chronicles have said.

The great task of constructing China's history according to these principles remains to be done, but

Around the Courts

THEATRE MAN FINED

For presenting a theatrical performance at the Yaumati theatre, on May without a permit from the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs of Police, J.M. Noronha of the Credit Foncier D'Extreme Orient was yesterday fined $50 by Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

Mr. F. G. Nigel, of Messrs. Johnson, Stokes and Master, appeared on behalf of the defendant, while Detective Sergeant Franklin appeared as complainant.

Detective Sergeant Franklin stated that on May 13 he visited the Yaumati Theatre and found that a stage performance was in progress. He asked whether a permit had been obtained from the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs, and a poster was produced and shown to him. He was told that this was the permit.

Mr. Nigel stated that his instructions were to plead guilty. He further stated that the theatre had a licence from the Inspector General of Police for stage performances, and his client thought that this covered everything.

His Worship stated that although they had a licence, it was necessary to obtain a permit from the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs or the Inspector General of Police.

DOG OWNERS FINED

Appearing before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday on two summonses of keeping a dog without a licence and of permitting the dog to be abroad without a muzzle Mr. C. S. Rosset of 24 Broadwood Road was fined $5 on the second summons and dismissed on the first.

L. King was fined $8 on a summons for allowing her dog to be on Shek-O Beach without a muzzle.

C. Gray, of 52 Village Road, was summoned for allowing his dog to be unmuzzled in Village Road on May 3, and for keeping the dog without a licence. He admitted the first summons, but said he had since taken out a licence. He was fined $5 on the first summons and $2 on the second.

I am sure it will be done fearlessly, not minimising the faults and failures, but showing in spite of them, the essential splendour and greatness of Chinese civilisation.

MAINTENANCE CASE

The case in which a Chinese woman, Pang Ting-ha 18 years of age, sued her husband, Chan Tin-kwong, a 21-year-old student for maintenance, came up again before Mr. Thomson at Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

The proceedings gained no further progress as His Worship granted the application of Mr. Leo D'Almada, Sr., who appeared for the complainant to order an adjournment, at the outset of yesterday's sitting.

Mr. D'Almada made the application on the grounds that his client was not in a condition to appear in Court yesterday.

The defendant was represented by Mr. F. I. Zimmerman.

WANCHAI THEFTS

Wong Yau who is still under supervision was yesterday sentenced by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy to one year's hard labour with two years' police supervision when convicted of housebreaking at 377, Lockhart Road and 11, Jaffe Road, Wanchai district.

Detective Sergeant Fitches, who prosecuted stated that the defendant had many previous convictions including one of burglary.

Sentence of nine weeks' hard labour was imposed on Chan Wing, a former printer, who pleaded guilty to the theft of electric bulbs and fittings from three Wanchai addresses, 217, Jaffe Road, 8, Tin Lok Lane and 199, Wanchai Road. Defendant had a screw-driver in his possession when arrested.

Detective Sergeant Fitches asked His Worship to take a serious view of the case as thefts of this type were prevalent in all districts.

Lai Fuk, 20, was sentenced to three months' hard labour by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, when he appeared on a charge of cutting and wounding Chiu Ho, 23, a fitter, at Yen Chow Street on June 7. Four other men appeared on the same charge and on their pleas of not guilty being accepted they were discharged. Detective Sub-Inspector Poyraz stated complainant was playing football in the street with some other boys, when defendant came up and kicked the ball. They had an argument and that night defendant went back to the place and assaulted complainant with two pieces of pointed metal plates.

Public Works Extraordinary:—Hong Kong, Public Health and Buildings Ordinance Resumptions—Aplichuau $525.

A sum of $7,100 was approved in 1934 for resumption of certain areas with buildings thereon at Aplichuau.

At the end of 1934 one claim was outstanding and the amount to be paid to the owner of house No. 72A, whose acceptance of the Government offer was not received until this year, was refunded to Revenue. A rebate of the sum of $525 is accordingly requested.

Royal Observatory:—Subscription to the Organisation Meteorologique Internationale $75.

The subscription of £10 per annum towards the cost of printing results of the International Upper Air Research Commission has been discontinued as a credit balance has accumulated which entitles the Colony to the publications of the Commission for some years. It is recommended that half of the above subscription (£5 annually) be paid to the 'Organisation Meteorologique Internationale', a society which is rendering valuable services to Meteorology and is appealing for funds.

The above is to be met from savings under Head 11, sub-head 8 (1935 Estimates page 35, item 8).

COST OF JUBILEE STAMPS

Post Office and Wireless (A) Post Office—9, Stamps $1,150.

Provision made in Estimates (page 22, sub-head 9) $1,000.

No provision was made in the Estimates for 1935 for the cost of the Silver Jubilee Stamps as the proposals did not reach the Colony in sufficient time. It is anticipated that sales to collectors and the resultant increase in Revenue will offset the cost of the issue to a considerable extent, and the ordinary issue, being temporarily withdrawn, will show a corresponding balance available for 1935.

A supplementary vote for $13,150 is requested.

Police Force—30, Special Course of Instruction $495.

Provision made in Estimates (page 48 sub-head 30) $400.

An amount of $400 only was included in the 1935 Estimates as it was not certain whether any officers would be in training in India this year. Mr. K. A. Bidehead is now undergoing training and an account for Rupees 1,250 has just been received. The amount asked for is to augment the $400 already provided.

The above is to be met from savings under 'Rations for Indian Police' (1935 Estimates page 48 sub-head 24).

Medical Department:—Special Expenditure, X-Ray Apparatus $1,450.

A sum of $10,000 was inserted in the 1934 Estimates for this service. Of this amount $1,100 was spent locally in installing one development tank leaving $8,900 for the purchase through the Crown Agents of the X-Ray Apparatus. This was not shipped and paid for until February, 1935 and the cost amounting to $7,450 (allowing for local charges of say $102) has to be met from a rebate.

A supplementary vote of $7,450 is therefore requested.

PUBLIC WORKS

Public Works, Extraordinary:—Hong Kong, Miscellaneous, Laying and constructing area for Matshed Piggeries, Kennedy Town $1,300.

On 27th September, 1934, the Finance Committee approved expenditure of the sum of $3,500 for the preparation of a new area for the pig dealers' matsheds situated at Kennedy Town near the Dangerous Goods Godowns of the China Provident Loan and Mortgage Company, Limited. The area has now been prepared, and it is necessary to remove the existing matsheds to the new area. It is considered that Government should pay for the removal. The cost of this is estimated at $1,300.

The unexpended balance on last year's vote was $1,143.

A supplementary vote of $1,300 is therefore requested.

Botanical and Forestry Department:—9, Library $680.

Provision made in Estimates (page 70 sub-head 9) $300.

A complete set of the Curtis's Botanical Magazine is very desirable for the library of the Botanical and Forestry Department, in which there are already 115 out of 158 volumes. It has not been possible to obtain the missing volumes during the past 30 years. Second-hand original back numbers (Vols. 71-100) are now offered at £65 the lot and as this opportunity may never occur again, a supplementary vote for $650 is requested.

The above is to be met from savings under sub-head 7 Forestry Reserve $350, sub-head 13 Transport $300 (1935 Estimates page 70 sub-heads 7 and 13).

Total $24,822.

SIR THOMAS MORE

Canonised At St. Peter's

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 25. Fifty thousand people, including 2,000 pilgrims from England alone, thronged St. Peter's to-day for the canonisation of Sir Thomas More, Lord Chancellor of England, and John Fisher, Bishop of Rochester, who were put to death by Henry VIII in 1535 on Tower Hill.

In the long procession into the cathedral there walked seventeen Cardinals, and eighty Archbishops and Bishops, including Mr. Hinsley, Archbishop of Westminster. Others present were King Alfonso of Spain, his son Prince Don Juan, and his daughter Princess Christina, and the entire diplomatic corps accredited to the Vatican.

The impressive ceremony, the most magnificent in the whole of the Church's ritual, lasted five hours. It began when the Pope, seated on his throne surrounded by Cardinals, heard an advocate make a formal request for the declaration of his Holiness.

In granting the petition for canonisation, the Pope said:—"By the authority of Our Lord Jesus Christ, of the Holy Apostles, Peter and Paul, and of ourselves... we decree and define that Thomas and John are saints, and we insert their names upon the catalogue of saints, commanding that their memory be annually venerated by the Universal Church."

ALL CITY BELLS IN PEAL

The "Te Deum" was then sung. This was followed by the bells of St. Peter's crashing out in a peal of joy, to be joined by the bells of every church in the Eternal City.

During an address his Holiness made an earnest plea to England. "We desire," he said, "that with your ardent prayers invoking the patronage of the new saints you ask of the Lord that which is so dear to our hearts—that England, in the words of St. Paul, mediating the happy consummation which crowned the life of those two martyrs may follow them in their faith and return to the Father's house in the unity of faith and knowledge of the son of God."

In the evening St. Peter's was flooded in addition to being illuminated by lanterns, electric lights and torches.

Among those who took part in the ceremony, says Reuter, were Mr. Duff, a London solicitor, and Mr. Thomas More-Eyton, one of the direct descendants of the saint.

DOLLAR CAPTAIN TO RETIRE

Colourful Career

After 26 years as a captain and having made friends in almost every port, including Hong Kong, W. O. Kohlmeister, Master of the Dollar liner President Johnson, is to retire when he reaches New York. His ship will retire with him, completing her farewell round-the-world tour on July 23.

Captain Kohlmeister, U.S.N.R., is one of the most capable and popular commanders of the Dollar Steamship Line. He has been in command of naval and commercial vessels for the past 26 years. His last ship, however, has been his favourite.

Standing on the bridge of his ship recently the Captain regretfully exclaimed that the President Johnson was the fastest ship he had ever handled; "She is the best girl I ever had!"

The President Johnson is 31 years old and was originally built in England for the Norddeutscher Lloyd, but was seized by the American Government during the war and used as a transport.

The ship, it is said, is able to hold more cargo than any other ship of her size afloat, and is the largest round-the-world liner operated by the Dollar Line.

FORGED BANK NOTES

Charged before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at Kowloon Magistracy yesterday for having in his possession, on May 27 last, five Chartered Bank banknotes (one $50 bill and four $10 bills), Ng Tong, a 53-year-old unemployed man was sentenced to six months' hard labour.

Detective Sergeant Allen appeared for the prosecution while the defendant was not legally represented.

According to the prosecution, it was stated that at about 7.35 p.m. on May 27 last, a Chinese detective and another man were sitting at a table. The detective approached the defendant and asked him whether he had any forged banknotes in his possession, and then searched defendant and while doing so, the latter made a movement of his hand to his left leg.

The detective stopped him and pulling up the left leg of defendant's trousers, he saw a newspaper parcel under the garter which supported the stocking which defendant was wearing. The detective did not touch the parcel but brought defendant to the Shamshuipo Police Station where he was searched by the Sergeant on duty in the charge room. The paper parcel was unwrapped and the five banknotes were found inside it.

Shek Tiu, Chinese detective, gave evidence corroborating Sgt. Allen's outline.

Mr. J. M. Pina, clerk of Chartered Bank of India, Australia and China gave evidence that the banknotes were forgeries.

Defendant, in the witness box, alleged that the banknotes (forged) were put under his garter by the other man that was arrested with him. He had refused to keep the banknotes for the man (name given as Kwong Shun) knowing them to be forged, but Kwong Shun put them under his stockings. Very shortly after that had been done by Kwong Shun, defendant alleged, the detective arrived and had him arrested.

His Worship, however, found him guilty.

Sentence of 12 months' hard labour was imposed by Mr. MacFadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday on Au Chi, aged 34, who pleaded guilty to a breach of the Deportation Ordinance. He was banished for 10 years in September, 1934. Defendant pleaded that he came back to get money for his mother. Detective Sergeant C. Goodwin prosecuted.

Wong Sang, aged 33, unemployed, was charged before Mr. MacFadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday with the theft of 82 handkerchiefs, valued at $1.50, from 283, Des Voeux Road Central, the property of Yuen Yau, aged 40, shop fook. Defendant was arrested by a district watchman near Tung Man Street with the parcel of handkerchiefs in his arms. He was questioned and admitted stealing. Defendant had a previous conviction for stealing. Sub-Inspector Walsh prosecuted.

FAMOUS SCREEN STAR'S VISIT

Douglas Fairbanks Interviewed

Mr. Douglas Fairbanks, the well known cinema actor arrived in the Colony yesterday on board the s.s. Carthage accompanied by Lady Ashley, Miss Carew and Mr. and Mrs. Roona.

The famous actor and idol of millions left his yacht at Soerabala and flew to Singapore where he caught the boat for Hong Kong. The seven other members of his party were still at Hebrides and yesterday the yacht left Soerabala to bring them back.

In an interview Mr. Fairbanks admitted that the 20th Century and the Fox Film have amalgamated and that the 20th Century supplied United Artists with about eight pictures a year. This present movie, the famous actor said, was slightly embarrassing at present but it will make no difference at all on the current contracts.

Due to the change in the company Mr. Fairbanks is making all haste to America. He stated that Mr. Zanuck the producer of 20th Century will be leaving them, but another director of a higher calibre will be taking Mr. Zanuck's place.

After referring to the part which he played in "Don Juan" as being not all quite to his satisfaction, he said that at present Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer has a slight advantage over them in the quality of pictures produced but this deficiency, he assured our representative, will be easily remedied in the future when more pictures will be produced.

Mr. Fairbanks was on his way to Australia when a quick decision to go back to America made him change all his plans. He will remain in America for three months to attend to his business and after that he will be taking a trip to Italy to see about a musical company there and then he will continue his journey to England and New York and then to Japan.

Mr. Fairbanks is at present dastined for Japan where he will catch the Empress of Canada for America.

Regarding the weather, the famous actor said that Hong Kong was experiencing some of the best climate he had been privileged to encounter on his visits and that the "little island" had always been a source of delight to him.

His Worship sentenced defendant to three weeks' hard labour.

Fines totalling $1,500, with the alternative of eight months' hard labour, were imposed on Kwok Yim, 28, shop fook, when he pleaded guilty before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, to charges of possession of fermenting material; and possession of an unlicensed still. Revenue Officer Grimmett preferred a further charge of distilling Chinese spirits against defendant. It was stated that defendant was arrested in an empty flat at No. 63 Cheung On Street, ground floor. On the premises were found five barrels of mash equalling about 40 gallons, value at $1 per gallon.

Three men, Chau Chung, 32, shop fook, Chan Shui, 40, cloth weaver, and Chan Hui Cheung, 32, unemployed, were brought before Mr. MacFadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday, charged with behaving in a disorderly manner in Bonham Strand East near Cleverly Street by fighting. Sub-Inspector Walsh stated that the second defendant accused the first defendant of owing him $40, and when he was refused payment, started a fight. Both had friends with them on either side, but these men ran away and were not arrested. All defendants were bound over in personal bonds of $50 each to be of good behaviour for one year.

Three months' hard labour was passed on Fong Ming, 33, unemployed, when he pleaded, guilty before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday to a charge of unlawful possession of a radiator cap at Prince Edward Road on Monday. In pleading guilty defendant stated that he stole the cap from Shamshuipo because he had no money. Detective Sub-Inspector Poyntz prosecuted.

A returned banishee, Leung Sun, 28, with four previous convictions for theft and one for a breach of the deportation ordinance, was sent to prison for twelve months by Mr. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday. Another banishee, Chan Kwai, who returned before his term of deportation

OBITUARY

Bro. Charles Fino

We regret to have to record the death of the Very Rev. Brother Charles Fino which occurred at the St. Francis Hospital yesterday following a brief illness.

The late Bro. Fino was in charge of the Carpentry Department of the Aberdeen Industrial School at the time of his death and was also the School's band leader.

Only 30 years old the deceased came out to China when only 20 years of age. His first charge was of the Carpentry Department of the Salesian Industrial School at Shanghai and was later transferred to the St. Louis Industrial School, Hong Kong, where he remained for seven years and during which time he was asked to take charge of the Carpentry Department of the King's College Industrial Department and after the completion of the newly established Aberdeen Industrial School he was transferred there.

Of a kind and genial disposition the late Bro. Fino will be very much missed by his many past and present students and also all those whom he came in contact with. He was a native of Turin.

THE FUNERAL

The funeral took place yesterday evening at the Roman Catholic Cemetery, Happy Valley, when Father John Pedrizzini conducted the burial services both at Chapel and at the grave-side.

Those present at the funeral were Father A. Riganti, representing Bishop Valtorta, Fathers Bernardine, Wleczorek and Gallagher, Sisters of the Italian Convent, French Convent and the Maryknoll Convent, teachers, and students of the Aberdeen Industrial School, St. Louis Industrial School and Salesian Industrial School and many others.

No flowers were sent by request.

FELL FROM 60 FEET

Climbing over the window sill at the third floor of No. 64 Village Road, Kenneth Kelvin Fazil, the nine months' old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. el Arcuelli fell down from a height of about 60 feet to the road below at about 8 a.m. yesterday and when picked up was suffering from terrible head injuries.

Despite quick medical aid which was instantly forthcoming the child succumbed to his injuries when removed to the Government Civil Hospital a few minutes later. Much sympathy will go out to the bereaved parents in the heavy loss they sustained.

The funeral took place yesterday evening at the Roman Catholic Cemetery when it was attended by the relatives and friends.

ALDERSHOT TATTOO

Fireworks Display Not On Programme

London, June 11. Sixty thousand school children this afternoon watched the dress rehearsal of the Aldershot Tattoo in Rushmore Arena. The Duke of Connaught, Duchess of York and the two little Princesses were also present.

Shortly before the performance began an Army lorry loaded with fireworks caught fire and the children much enjoyed the pyrotechnic display which was not on the programme.

No one was hurt but the lorry was destroyed.

British Wireless.

expired, was sentenced to nine months.

Tang Yu San, who admitted stealing two electric fans from the Grand Theatre, Wanchai, was sent to prison for three months with hard labour. It was stated the lock of the grill was broken to gain entrance.

An application for the confiscation of 2,000 packets of matches, 700 cattles of rice and 80 cattles of sugar, found unmanifested and unclaimed on board the steamer Hai Li at the China Merchants Wharf on June 8, was made by Sergeant A. E. Haynes before Mr. MacFadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday. His Worship granted the application. Sergeant Grainger also applied to His Worship for the confiscation of 14 tials of raw opium found unmanifested and unclaimed on board the steamer Lung Shan on June 7. This was also granted.

HONG KONG, JUNE 13, 1935.

WHAT IS GOVERNMENT?

Public relief, national planning, tariff rates and agricultural prosperity, among others, have been questions affecting many nations in recent years. Often, in the stressful moments of national and international affairs, those who are responsible for government—the people—completely forget what government is. It may seem to them a motley collection of men, with whom they have nothing to do, who are yet settling their affairs for them. They praise it or blame it as individuals, according to their temper at the moment. It is well to stop and consider that a government can be no better than the thought of the citizens it represents, for properly speaking, a government is not men but the administration of the affairs of the state—and those affairs are the people's affairs, and the government is an expression of the thought of the people.

Sometimes when things go wrong, it is said that the voice of the people at large is not much represented by the actions of government. But if this is so, it is for the people to work out methods which will correct such conditions. In time these methods will be reflected in the administration of the affairs of state.

In no case, however, can a nation rise higher than its conception of God, for that determines its conception of man. Through the ages, nations have risen and fallen as their conceptions of God became clearer or grew dim. When good is a people's God, and in proportion as good is understood as an unselfish and wholly desirable condition, that people's government must necessarily express its nation's concepts. If good is thought of as an intensely personal affair, a "me and mine" business, government must reflect this. A perfect government, satisfactory to all, cannot be achieved until each individual labours for the common good. It would seem, then, that education must bend its efforts more in this direction.

While governments are giving much thought to supplying people with the first necessities of existence, food, fuel and clothes, they cannot well forget that upon education, or the lack of it, to-day, must depend to-morrow's conditions. Upon the people, "all the people's" understanding of the Golden Rule, must depend to-day's government, and to-morrow's. Better government will not be attained by partisan politics with each group attempting to overthrow the other successively by a process of discrediting it, but rather by educating nations to see, intelligently, the practical value of the common weal.

FRENCH STEP TO CURB SPECULATION

Paris, June 11.
 With a view to curbing speculation, which is already declining, the Bank of France to-day decided to suspend advances on gold bullion.

The decision was reached after a conference of the Minister of Finance, M. Regnier, and the Governor of the Bank of France, M. Tannery. The suspension is considered closely connected with the Bank of England's action last week in requesting London banks and bullion dealers to refrain from forward dealing in gold for speculative accounts.

The practice of buying gold forward is regarded as detrimental to the technical defence of exchange. It is believed in some quarters that an agreement has been reached between Paris and London, and possibly New York, to eradicate private gold speculation and the measures taken may be destined to prepare the way for a general understanding on exchange rates, prior to de facto stabilisation.

It is thought that it is this idea of alignment of currencies which is causing the London gold price to be checked up to eight pounds sterling per ounce.

OLYMPIAD AT THE Y.M.C.A.

Novel Sport

A very successful and amusing "burlesque" in the form of Indoor Olympic Games was arranged by the Ladies' Section of the European Y.M.C.A. Kowloon and held last evening. The list of names of the members of the Committee who went to the trouble of preparing the programme of events for the entertainment of the large gathering who were present and took part in the 12 events, are as follows:—Mrs. J. Lanchester, Mrs. A. R. Brown, Mrs. M. Burke, Mrs. V. Burdon, Mrs. A. W. Ingram, Miss A. Fowler and Mrs. E. M. Boas.

Besides the Committee, other officials who helped to a great extent in the success of the evening were:—Judges—Dr. J. Lanchester and Mr. A. W. Ingram. Starter—Mr. E. F. Selk. Timekeepers—Messrs. H. Smith and A. S. Sweet. Scorer—Mr. D. Marshall. Programme Girl—Miss G. Lake-man. Badge Steward—Mrs. Boas.

Six teams were picked from the large gathering and were given the following titles:—Mars (Red), Venus (Pink), Jupiter (Green), Saturn (Violet), Neptune (Blue) and Mercury (Orange).

The Team Captains were:—Mrs. Mr. D. K. Paul; Venus, Mr. P. Sellwood; Jupiter, Mr. R. Bates; Saturn, Mr. G. Basil Jones; Neptune, Mr. V. Hast; Mercury, Mr. L. D. Skinner.

The results of the twelve events which were all very keenly contested are as follows:—

1. 100 Metres Swimming:—1. Violet; 2. Green; 3. Orange.

2. Hurling The Javelin:—1. Orange; 2. Red; 3. Orange.

3. Putting The Weight:—1. Violet; 2. Green; 3. Blue.

4. Potato Race:—1. Pink; 2. Red; 3. Blue.

5. Musical Contest:—Won by Mrs. Siegler in the ladies' section and by Mr. Harold Smith in the men's section.

6. Inside Run:—1. Blue; 2. Red; 3. Pink.

7. Eating Contest:—All those present took part in this event, but no result can be given.

8. Long Jump:—1. Violet; 2. Red; 3. Blue.

9. 100 Metres Hurdles:—1. Orange; 2. Blue; 3. Pink.

10. 300 Metres Steeplechase:—1. Violet; 2. Pink; 3. Orange.

11. Relay Race:—1. Blue; 2. Orange; 3. Red.

12. Charlot Race:—1. Violet; 2. Pink; 3. Blue.

The results of the numbers of points gained by each team were as follows:—Saturn, 1,800; Mars, 1,700; Venus, 1,400; Neptune, 1,400; Mercury 1,300; Jupiter, 900.

At the conclusion of the evening sport, prizes were presented to the winning team by Mrs. Sweet. Separate prizes were also donated to Mrs. Siegler and Mr. H. Smith for the Musical Contest.

Mr. E. F. Selk in thanking all those who had so ably arranged such a successful evening's entertainment, expressed his wishes that he hoped this would be the forerunner to many more such enjoyable evenings.

CLOSE VOTE IN SENATE

Holding Company Bill Passed

Washington, June 11.

The Senate, by another close vote, rejected an amendment to deny the Security Exchange Commission power to initiate dissolution proceedings against holding companies, but an amendment by Senator Borah to prevent more than one holding company being imposed upon an operating company was accepted.

Among other amendments accepted was one permitting regional holding companies to possess or control a few non-competing utilities, such as water systems.

Senator Wheeler, the Holding Bill's chief protagonist, denied assertions that the measure was unconstitutional, being backed therein by Senator Borah, who expressed the opinion that control of holding companies could be applied through inter-State commerce.

Prior to the final vote, the Bill was bitterly assailed by its opponents, among whom Senator Dieterich said, "The Bill, instead of being a regulatory measure is

ROMANCE AT RENO

Marriage Follows Divorce

Reno, June 11.
 The famous novelist, Mrs. Pearl Buck, filed suit for divorce from her husband, Professor John Buck, to-day. She charges extreme cruelty.

PEARL BUCK

Professor Buck has filed an answer which is a general denial of her charges.

Property rights and the custody of their two children will be settled by agreement.

Shortly before Mrs. Buck filed her suit, another suit was filed by Mrs. Richard Walsh, seeking divorce from the well-known New York publisher on the ground of "extreme cruelty". Mr. Walsh, who has published some of Mrs. Buck's writings, has filed a general denial to his wife's allegations.

Mrs. Buck and Mrs. Walsh are living together just outside Reno. Mrs. Buck's name has been coupled with that of Mr. Walsh by romantic columnists, but she and Mrs. Walsh are the closest friends.

Later, Both Mrs. Walsh and Mrs. Buck have obtained their divorces.

LOSS OF GERMAN NATIONALITY

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Berlin, June 11.
 Thirty-six names appear on a list published on Tuesday night by the Reich Minister for Home Affairs announcing the withdrawal of German nationality for the violation of duty to the Reich and the people as laid down in a law passed on July 14 last year, concerning the loss of civil rights and German nationality.

Only a few of the names listed are known to the general public, two notable exceptions being Dr. Rudolf Hilferding, the former Socialist Finance Minister, and Karl Hoeltmann, the ex-leader of the "Iron Front".

Two women, wives of those on the list, also lost their German nationality. The property of all those listed was confiscated by the State.

Transoceanic Kuo Min.

An effort for the public control of all utilities.

All attempts to modify the Bill were met by the reading of President Roosevelt's message stating that "any amendment which goes to the heart of the Bill's major objective would be wholly contrary to the recommendations of my Holding Company message."

In view of the virtually unanimous concerted attacks against the Bill by utility interests, the Senate vote is considered a great victory for the Administration and most disappointing to those who, in view of the recent N.R.A. decision, hoped for a more liberal and more cautious attitude by the Senate.

Washington, June 11.

By a margin of one vote, the Senate rejected the amendment to transform the Holding Company Bill into a simple regulatory measure. Later the Senate passed the Holding Company Bill.

Messrs. Carroll Bros. are in receipt of advice that the Antamok Goldfields Mining Company has declared a dividend of 20 per cent. (2 cents per share) payable on the 30th instant. Books will close on the 24th instant.

The time scheduled for the University Union Launch picnic has been altered, the launch will now leave Blake Pier at 7.45 p.m. instead of at 7 p.m. as previously announced.

Mr. A. B. Stewart, Manager of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., Ltd., is leaving the Colony on the 29th of this month, on furlough.

John Mitchell, a 14-year-old European lad of Austin Avenue, Kowloon, was yesterday morning bitten by a terrier pup at about 8 o'clock in Kimberley Road near Luna Building. His injuries, which were on the right leg, were treated at the Kowloon Hospital, while the dog was not traced up to a late hour last night.

The following forthcoming weddings are announced at the Registrar's Office, Supreme Court:—Mr. Louis Hathaway Albiston, naval officer, on U.S.S. The sudden subsidence of that part of Connaught Road Central just opposite the Star Ferry Wharf early yesterday morning greatly inconvenienced traffic. The cause was due to the weakening of the under surface, which is composed of mud, through moistening. P.W.D. coolies were soon on the scene and erected barricade around the "danger zone". By midnight the road was well under repair and traffic had resumed its normal course.

Messrs. Carroll Bros. are in receipt of advice that the Antamok Goldfields Mining Company has declared a dividend of 20 per cent. (2 cents per share) payable on the 30th instant. Books will close on the 24th instant.

The time scheduled for the University Union Launch picnic has been altered, the launch will now leave Blake Pier at 7.45 p.m. instead of at 7 p.m. as previously announced.

Mr. A. B. Stewart, Manager of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., Ltd., is leaving the Colony on the 29th of this month, on furlough.

John Mitchell, a 14-year-old European lad of Austin Avenue, Kowloon, was yesterday morning bitten by a terrier pup at about 8 o'clock in Kimberley Road near Luna Building. His injuries, which were on the right leg, were treated at the Kowloon Hospital, while the dog was not traced up to a late hour last night.

The following forthcoming weddings are announced at the Registrar's Office, Supreme Court:—Mr. Louis Hathaway Albiston, naval officer, on U.S.S. Isabel, and Miss Frances Evelyn Stevens, residing at 270, Orange Street, Manchester, N.H.; and Mr. Roberto Maria Roberts, clerk, Jardine Engineering Corp., Ltd., residing at 9, Nanking Street, and Miss Carmelina Anacleto Roberts of the same address.

ANTI-OPIMUM DRIVE

Its Achievements In China

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Nanking, June 3.
 Since Lin Tse-Hsu's time, the anti-opium movement has never quite ceased in this country. In the past, there have been many defects in the drive. But the National Government in accordance with Dr. Sun Yat-sen's teachings, has determined to suppress the narcotic evil in China with all available means. Many plans have been drafted governing the cultivation of poppy, the suppression of smoking dens, etc. Last July, the Military Affairs Commission was instructed to begin the carrying out of a six-year plan for opium suppression, and definite steps were then mapped out. On May 29, this year, the Central Political Council appointed General Chiang Kai-shek, President of the Military Affairs Commission, as Director-General of the Anti-Opium Commission, and held him responsible for the wiping out of the evil in this country. This is one of the most hopeful signs in the anti-drug drive in China.

The past, there have not been many definite schemes in anti-opium campaign, and only empty slogans were uttered against the evil. To-day, the highest military authorities have been designated to carry on the campaign in pursuance of well-considered schemes, and it is confidently felt that definite results will follow in the near future.

On the occasion of the National Anti-Opium Day, Dr. J. Heng Liu, Chairman of the National Opium Suppression Commission, in an address here, declared that poppy cultivation has been completely suppressed in the Provinces of Honan, Hupeh, Anhwei, Kiangsi, Kiangsu, Chekiang and Fukien, while the Provinces of Szechwan and Kansu have resorted to schemes for the gradual reduction of cultivation year by year which have achieved results. Measures aiming at the prohibition of opium, he stated, will henceforth be formulated by the newly-appointed Director-General for Opium Suppression, General Chiang Kai-shek with a recent decision of the Central Political Council, which at the same time decreed the abolition of the National Opium Suppression Commission in the interests of centralization of control. Thus it may be rightly said that China has entered into a new epoch of opium suppression.

Dr. Liu recounted briefly the work performed by the Commission during past six years in the matter of eradicating the opium evil from the country. He said that under the able leadership of General Chiang Kai-shek, much progress has been made during the past year. Since the enforcement of a stringent policy by the National Government, smuggling, secret sales and clandestine smoking of drugs have much decreased. At present, there are more than 600 clinics throughout the country for the treatment of opium addicts, and many more such similar institutions are now under organization.

The measures adopted by the National Government in enforcing opium suppression have been rigid. This, he said, could be seen from the fact that during the past year a total of 263 drug smokers have been executed. Such healthy conditions in the work of opium suppression have never existed before.

A NEW ATTEMPT

During recent years, Dr. Liu continued, many foreign nations have regarded the Chinese opium suppression measure as an entirely new attempt, and viewed this with sympathy and understanding. In the sessions of the 20th convention of the International Opium Suppression this year, in Geneva, various powers have expressed great satisfaction over China's efforts in the field of opium suppression. This, Dr. Liu pointed out, clearly indicated that the attitude of the Powers several years ago has now been changed to one of sympathetic confidence, and it is to be expected that this attitude will ultimately lead to Sino foreign co-operation in the immediate future in joint measures against the narcotic evil.

Among the many special rights Japanese enjoy in China is the facility of sending press telegrams to Japan without being censored by the Chinese authorities, and from Japan they can relay the same message to all parts of the world.

There is a special Japanese cable connecting Shanghai with Nagasaki, and this service is not subject to censorship. On the other hand British, American and other foreign lines are under strict regulations of the Chinese authorities.

Any news detrimental to the interest of China cannot be cabled from Shanghai, but to avoid censorship the sender can file the message at the Japanese telegraph company to Nagasaki where it is relayed to the final destination.

In view of this peculiar situation, Japanese sources of Chinese news are eagerly sought by readers not only in other parts of the world but in China. Several Chinese newspapers in Hong Kong published big "scoops" by translating Chinese news from Japanese newspapers.

Chinese censors have sometimes an eccentric judgment of their own and fail to pass a telegram which is in effect harmless. Certain passages in a telegram may be deleted or certain words are added without knowledge of the sender.

A Japanese news agency having close connection with the Tokyo Foreign Office has recently opened an office at Shamen. This agency has set up a wireless transmitting and receiving set and is in direct contact with Tokyo.

Outgoing and incoming telegrams are not censored in Canton except during an emergency period. In the event of censorship, the correspondent here can send his story by courier or trunk call to Hong Kong, where the message can be relayed abroad.

European and American correspondents in North China are clamouring that the censorship should be removed or that their Japanese colleagues should be amenable to the same treatment. The "China Weekly Review", an American periodical in Shanghai is launching a movement to this effect.

NORTH CHINA SITUATION TURNS FOR THE WORSE

Time Limit Set By The Japanese

IMMEDIATE FIGHTING IMMINENT

Chinese Leaders Hold Long Conference

Nanking, June 12.

The Sino-Japanese situation has suddenly taken a serious turn for the worse following Ho Ying Ching's rejection of the Japanese demand for a Chinese reply to the Japanese requirements of May 29, which must be in writing. The time limit is fixed for midnight to-night. An immediate outbreak of fighting in North China is feared if the Japanese militarists insist on carrying out the demand.

Chinese leaders conferred all day long to devise means to meet the new situation. Meanwhile talk is growing among the Chinese leaders, in view of the unreasonable Japanese attitude and constantly more serious Japanese aggression, that the Chinese Government should abandon the present anti-Communist campaign and join hands with Russia to meet the present situation.

INDEPENDENT POLITICAL ZONE

Tokyo, June 12.

Chinese rumours that Emperor Kang Teh is visiting Peiping shortly are denied by a Foreign Office spokesman, who declared that the future administration of North China "has nothing to do with the Japanese Government."

On the other hand the Japanese Press makes a feature of Press reports from Peiping foreshadowing the formation of an independent political zone to the north of the Yellow River composed of Hopei, Shantung and Chahar, which will be free from the activities of the Kuomintang.

The "Kokumin Shimbun" declares that the policy of the Japanese Army is not to interfere in such political changes provided they do not adopt an anti-Japanese attitude and do not disturb the peace and order of Hopei. —Reuter.

London, June 12. The possibility of Imperial restoration in Peiping excites widespread speculation in best informed circles here. Observers adhere to the belief that such a denouement has entered into the Japanese intentions and on the other hand they will do their utmost to prevent it.

It is pointed out that the present incursion into North China can be camouflaged as a legitimate necessity for suppressing anti-Japanese propaganda and incitement to banditry in Manchukuo, but to put the Emperor on the throne of Peiping will not fail to arouse the Western Powers in earnest and create incalculable difficulties. On the other hand it is pointed out that Japan has now virtually created a vacuum in North China where future Chinese control must be pro-Japanese.

The populace in Peiping would naturally welcome resuscitation of the throne and the wealth it will bring. It is not impossible that these facts may spur old Chinese Imperialists to renew their efforts of a few months ago to restore the Emperor to Peiping more strenuously than ever. This, it is considered, is the meaning of Tokyo's phrase that restoration cannot be entirely over-ruled. —Reuter.

MORE DEMANDS

Peiping, June 12.

It is reliably learned that the Japanese have presented further, and most important, demands including the wholesale removal of Government officials and replacement by others strongly friendly to Japan. —Reuter.

DOIHARA'S STATEMENT

Tientsin, June 12.

A somewhat anomalous position in Peiping and the Tientsin area was outlined by General Doihara in an interview with the foreign Press this afternoon when he explained that nothing resembling a demilitarized zone was demanded in the district by the Japanese. Although, if the Chinese authorities drafted "too many troops" to Hopei, the Japanese will consider it a breach of Nanking's newly-declared policy towards foreigners. General Doihara affirmed that the number of Chinese troops allowed in Hopei had not been fixed in the recent negotiations. He was optimistic of a peaceful settlement of the present dispute and added that the withdrawal of the present Japanese garrison, which is expected in two or three days after the arrival of relief forces to-day, would be a signal that all tension has passed.

General Doihara's stay in Tientsin is indefinite and he will visit Peiping for discussions with Chinese leaders shortly. —Reuter.

RELIEFS TROOPS ARRIVE

Tientsin, June 12.

Amid wild cheering of vast crowds of Japanese men, women and children who thronged the streets in the Japanese Concession, the first batch of Japanese military reliefs marched to the Japanese barracks from the east station in the afternoon.

Among the gathering to greet the unit at the station were Lieut. General Umetsu and Consul General Kawagoe, also staff officers of the Japanese garrison. —Reuter.

LONDON WATCHING

London, June 11.

Developments in North China are being closely watched in London, where they are regarded as of first importance, states the "Morning Post" diplomatic correspondent.

No illusions are entertained with regard to the Japanese intentions and the establishment of a Japanese protectorate over the province of Chihli (now Hopei) and the region to the South as far as the Yellow River is considered to be well on the way.

It is expected that both Peiping and Tientsin will shortly pass completely under Japanese control and it is understood that the necessity, which will very soon arise, of moving the Embassies and Legations of foreign Powers to Nanking is already under consideration.

Regarding the British commercial interests in North China, no immediate threat is expected, although the treatment of foreign oil companies in Manchukuo does not encourage excessive optimism in this respect. —Reuter.

TROOP MOVEMENTS

Tientsin, June 12.

It is understood that the Japanese military conference here has decided temporarily to maintain

Rumours of Emperor Kang Teh's visit to Peiping are denied by the Japanese Foreign Office

the Kwantung Army, concentrations along the Great Wall.

It has confirmed the decision to return the relieved troops of the Tientsin garrison to Japan on June 16, however. The replacements having already arrived, this departure of troops need not be delayed. Officials declined to disclose the strength of the new Japanese garrison forces. —Reuter.

PLANES ARRIVE

Tientsin, June 12.

Three Japanese military planes have arrived from Chingchow. —Reuter.

FRENCH INTEREST

Paris, June 11.

The growing tension between China and Japan is provoking considerable discussion in the French press. Most journals reproach the League of Nations for the laxity in handling the situation at the outbreak of the Sino-Japanese conflict so that subsequently the situation became unmanageable. Thus the "Intransigeant" writes: "Events have taken their course. Japanese pressure is expanding southwards. Where will it stop? The weakness of the Geneva organization has opened the floodgates so that the Japanese front wave is now breaking over the whole 'extreme of the Orient.' 'Le Temps' records that great uneasiness prevails in the United States and England, since the victory of the Japanese military party is evident and their slogan 'Asia for the Asiatics' really amounts to 'Asia for the Japanese.' What will the powers interested in the maintenance of the integrity of North China and the policy of the open door do?" —Transocean Kuo Min.

JAPANESE REJECTION

Tokyo, June 12.

It is learned semi-officially that Japan has rejected the invitation, sent on June 8, from the British Ambassador, to participate in a conference with the British representative, Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, French, Italian, American and other economic experts who propose to meet at Nanking in September to explore the possibility of rehabilitating China's finances.

A spokesman has explained that participation in such a conference would be contrary to Japan's fixed China policy. —Reuter.

ANGLO-GERMAN NAVAL DISCUSSIONS

Draft Agreement To Be Prepared

London, June 12.

Herr von Ribbentrop and the German naval experts are expected to return to London on Thursday for resumption of the conversations on Friday.

During the Whitsuntide vacation Herr von Ribbentrop discussed with Chancellor Hitler the result of the London conversations and it is expected that a draft agreement will be prepared embodying an Anglo-German understanding as regards the relative naval strengths giving the German Navy a 35 per cent. ratio of the British strength as may be fixed in relation to other navies, the ratio to be on each category separately. —Reuter.

FRENCH SPECULATION

Paris, June 12.

A naval agreement in principle will be reached between Britain and Germany which will provide an opportunity and basis for a future European naval treaty, declares "l'Oeuvre" which thinks that the Germans are prepared to pay for such an agreement by agreeing to effect her building programme in sections over a period of time and quantitative limitation of units which will be a very great concession.

When the principle of an agreement is reached then it will be France's turn to speak. One can see a general settlement only a long time away, hence for France to say much on the matter now would be vital to her interests, states the journal.

The "Echo de Paris" differs by declaring that if the Washington Treaty is not renewed before the end of the year and an armament race develops between America and Japan, Britain would then be on a level and German naval armaments would not fall to rise. It is very unlikely therefore that the 35 per cent. ratio would be sufficient to settle the question raised by revival of German sea-power. —Reuter.

ILLNESS OF ADMIRAL

Some Improvement Reported

AMBASSADOR'S PLANS

Peiping, June 12.

Sir Alexander Cadogan, British Ambassador to China, will not be travelling through the Yangtse Gorges as he had planned, after presenting his credentials to Nanking on Saturday, but will return immediately to Peiping.

It is understood his change of plan is due to the illness of Admiral Sir Frederick Dreyer, the nature of which is being kept a strict secret here at the Admiralty's request. —Reuter.

A later Reuter message says that Sir Alexander Cadogan has arrived in Nanking.

Naval authorities in Hong Kong yesterday stated that Admiral Dreyer is suffering from the after-effects of dysentery.

SHELL COMPANY PROFITS

Nearly Four Million Pounds

London, June 12.

Reference to the withdrawal from Manchukuo, consequent on the oil monopoly, of the Shell Transport and Trading Company is made in the annual report which hopes that this may prove to be only a temporary retirement and that some means will be found within the limits of sound business to enable the Company to retake its place in Manchukuo.

The report adds that the Japanese Government's petroleum law contains features equally objectionable to Japanese refiners and foreign companies and there are good grounds for believing that means will be found for disposing of these difficulties.

The profits of the Shell Transport and Trading Company last year amounted to £3,874,475 which is an increase of £1,059,440 compared with 1933. —Reuter.

SEIZURE OF JAPANESE BOAT AND CARGO

Chinese Customs Sensation

Shanghai, June 12.

A sensation has been caused by Barend F. Burger, until June 7 commanding the Chinese Customs speed boat Kuanwei, filing an affidavit at the Japanese Consulate admitting that contrary to his log entry he had seized a Japanese motor boat and cargo of art silk valued at $100,000 outside Chinese waters, namely five miles eastward of Amherst Rocks on June 1.

Burger told the "Evening Post" that he resigned from the Customs because the authorities refused him full ten per cent. value of the seized cargo proposed instead of divide the money with the commander of another Customs boat which was in the vicinity at the time of the seizure.

The affidavit alleges that "many of our past seizures" occurred outside Chinese waters, a false entry being logged in order to gain the seizure reward.

Friends of Burger are fearful of his safety as the revelation jeopardises the reward due to Chinese informers. —Reuter.

MANCHESTER LOAN FLOATED

SOUTH AFRICANS AT LORD'S

Recovery And Collapse

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 29.—There were several reasons why more than usual interest was centred in the first appearance of the South Africans at Lord's. They were playing on a ground that, owing to the leatherjacket menace, has become notorious in these days for low scoring; they were faced with a purely amateur attack; and, included in the M.C.C. team opposed to them were the four players from whom it is anticipated the England captain for the Test matches will be chosen. These were R. E. S. Wyatt, C. F. Walters, R. W. V. Robins, and E. R. T. Holmes, and it is significant, in view of the presence of the three selectors, that the Warwickshire player led the team on this occasion.

The South Africans, who, so far, have an unblemished record in this country, having won at Worcester, Leicester, Cambridge, and the Oval, and drawn in a high-scoring game at Oxford, did not appear in the least intimidated by the evil reputation—possibly exaggerated—now associated with the headquarters of the game for on winning the toss they had no hesitation in batting on a wicket that appeared to play easily.

They started confidently, scoring at the rate of a run a minute, through Wade and Siedle, against Wyatt and Baxter, the fast amateur bowler from Scotland who is qualifying for Middlesex. Matters were going well for them when at 21, the Springboks captain mistimed an inswinger from Baxter, and was dismissed under the new l.b.w. law.

This early success of the M.C.C. was not, however, destined to be the forerunner of the usual Lord's "procession" for Siedle and Rowan, both of whom left Oxford the previous day with undefeated centuries to their credit, settled down to an attractive partnership. So easily did they play the bowling that it was not long before Wyatt brought on the whole battery of his spin bowlers to the attack.

Still, not even Robins, who so far has obtained a rich harvest of wickets on the ground, made much impression on the batsmen for some considerable time. But eventually, on changing ends, he bowled Rowan round his legs to the obvious astonishment of the batsman. Out of the 81 put on for the second wicket Rowan had scored in exactly an hour, hitting five 4's.

A MERRY INNINGS
Nourse, the hero of successive centuries in his last three innings, did not long survive, being dismissed by Baxter after he had sent up the century—with a ball that kept very low, and then came a merry little innings by Cameron, who, with characteristic audacity, hit 19 out of 23 before falling a victim in the end to a goosy from Peebles, whose length netherbow had been uncertain.

The M.C.C. had done really well so far to dismiss four of the leading batsmen for 123, but after this, despite numerous changes, they met with no further success for well over an hour. Siedle, who was batting faultlessly—superb off-side play being a feature of his innings—found another useful partner in Dalton, the pair between them adding 75 in seventy-nine minutes before the left-hander was well taken behind the wicket.

Viljoen also lent him valuable assistance, and it was while this pair were together that Siedle reached his century, his second in succession, and his third of the tour. He obtained the runs out of 24 after batting for three hours forty-five minutes without the semblance of a chance.

The later batsmen fared disastrously against Peebles, who was then spinning the ball in the most uncanny manner, but Siedle remained unaffected by the rapid dismissal of his colleagues, and had the satisfaction of carrying his bat through the innings. In a faultless display of some four hours he hit eight 4's, the majority of which came from perfect straight driving, and not once was he in any difficulty.

Left with twenty minutes' batting, the M.C.C. lost the wicket of Hudson, a fast ball from Crisp shattering his stumps.

BAKEWELL IN FORM

SECOND WICKET STAND WITH GRIMSHAW
Northampton.
Rain curtailed play here, and when stumps were drawn an hour and a quarter before the scheduled time, Northamptonshire had scored 229 against Hampshire for the loss of six wickets.

The weather was so cold and dull that at one period the game was held up for twenty-five minutes owing to bad light. The total stood at 17 when Snowden left, but subsequently the batsmen gained the upper hand. Bakewell, producing his best form, gave an enterprising display without taking unnecessary risks, and reached 50 out of 76 in eighty minutes. Meantime, Grimshaw, a Yorkshireman who qualified this season, showed capital defence.

With Herman and Boyes bowling accurately, the batsmen found little chance of scoring freely. The introduction of Hill into the attack broke up the stand which realised 98 in 105 minutes. He induced Bakewell to offer a catch to Morse, close in on the leg side. Bakewell hit seven 4's in his 64 and did not make a mistake until that which brought about his dismissal. With a further 18 runs added, Hill bowled Timms. Joined by Cox, Grimshaw completed his first 50 in championship cricket, after which he changed his methods and hit boldly. He punished Creese for a 6 and a 4 in one over, but in trying to drive Boyes was smartly stumped at 179. Altogether he batted three hours and in addition to the one 6, he hit half a dozen 4's. At tea-time Northamptonshire's score was 127 for four wickets.

In the first half-hour after tea, 40 runs were added, but when the fifth wicket had yielded 48, Cox and Partridge were both dismissed with the total at 227. Rain started at quarter past five, and no further play was possible.

LAWN BOWLS CHAMPIONSHIP

Holland's Handsome Victory

Despite the showers at the close of the evening yesterday most of the bowls games in the Open Singles Championship (second round) were decided, the most surprising of which was the defeat of F. X. M. da Silva by A. M. Holland by the colossal score of 21 shots to 3 on the 14th head.

Several other games were played in which newcomers to the Championship had their share of the play.

SURPRISING SCORE
On the Kowloon Docks Recreation Club green yesterday, A. M. Holland and F. X. M. da Silva, two formidable skips in the senior league, met in the second round of the Singles Championship. The encounter resulting in the victory for the former by 21 shots to 3 on the 14th head.

Silva was completely off-form and did not at any stage of the game seem to find the right green, while Holland with his usual skill, played steadily from the start.

MATCH UNFINISHED
Rain caused a stop in the match between H. Beer, of the Craigen-gower Cricket Club and J. V. Ramsey, the Kowloon Docks player, on the Kowloon Cricket Club venue yesterday.

On the 5th head when the game was stopped by the rain Ramsey was leading Beer by 5 shots to 4.

EXPERIENCE TELLS
D. M. Khan, the Indian Recreation Club bowler, who is a newcomer to the tournament this year met G. N. Mitchell, of Kowloon Docks R.C. on the Club de Relelo green yesterday and was eliminated by 21 shots to 8.

Mitchell played confidently throughout, but Khan was nervous, and did not seem to do anything right, as the result of which the former was never seriously challenged.

M. Y. Adal surprised E. W. Simmons at the Talook Green yesterday when he won by the close margin of two shots on the 24th head by 22 to 20.

On the day's play both players were about of equal calibre, but Adal's placing was a shade better than his opponent. It was a close fight all along with the result resting on the last head—the 24th.

WESTLAKE TRIUMPHS
A four on the first head by H. F. Westlake in his match against J. Russell looked very promising indeed but Russell was not to be denied and on the very next notched a three. The game was very interesting from start to finish and at the 15th head the score was 14-13 in Westlake's favour.

At the 20th head the score was 16 all on and on the very next a two was scored by Westlake. One on the 22nd head by Russell reduced his deficit to one shot and on the 23rd head Westlake made that deficit back to 2 again. A two on the 24th head by Russell saw the score being tied once more and the 25th head saw Westlake lying three and Russell was only able to rob him of one point and allowed Westlake two shots and the match.

The Open Singles Championship match between A. Hyde-Lay and J. M. Purvis at the Craigen-gower had to be abandoned after Hyde-Lay was leading by 10 shots to 8 owing to rain.

U. S. BASEBALL

Double Header Battles

New York, June 11.—New York Yankees Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox each scored a "double" over their opponents in the America League. In the fourth double header, the Senators and Chicago White Sox shared the honours.

In the only double header in the National League, Cincinnati Reds beat the Giants in both games.

The following were the results as cabled by Reuter:—

(Roy Johnson homered for the Red Sox.)

GERMAN TOURIST INDUCEMENT
Berlin, June 11.—Roumania has also become accessible to the German tourist traffic since according to the text of an agreement published on Tuesday in the Reich Government Gazette, every traveller may now take five hundred marks in the form of Letters of Credit, hotel coupons or drafts for the expenses of one month's stay and have a further amount of five hundred marks each for two succeeding months, sent from Germany.

No special permission is required for those travelling on holidays or for those on recuperation. This is a further approach to the normal state of affairs, and with the sphere available to German tourists, who, hitherto, have been confined chiefly to Switzerland and Italy which have tourist agreements with Germany.—Transocean Kuo Min.

RAIN STOPS TENNIS

Owing to a sudden rain storm yesterday afternoon the "B" Division League Tennis matches between the Hong Kong Cricket Club and the University, and the Civil Service Cricket Club and the Kowloon Cricket Club were unfinished.

The University had secured one set against the Hong Kong Cricket Club when further play was made impossible. The Lee brothers (University) beat Gordon and Monaghan, 6-1. A. MacKenzie and A. C. Bowker (H.K.C.C.) were leading Dr. Tsai and Bao 6-5 when they had to leave the court.

At Happy Valley the Civil Service team had won one and lost one set against the K.C.C. at the time when play was stopped. Shute and Barrow (C.S.C.C.) beat Burnett and Oppenheim 6-1, and Bailey and Valentine (C.S.C.C.) lost 3-6 after which there was no further play.

GOLD BARS REFUSED AS SECURITY
(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Paris, June 11.—That gold bars will no longer be accepted by the Banque de France as security for loans is the decision embodied in a decree issued on Tuesday as the outcome of lengthy deliberations between the French Finance Minister and the Governor of the Banque de France.

This step is the first to be taken by the new Cabinet by virtue of its plenary powers to carry out a campaign against speculation of the French franc. During the period when barish speculation was at its height, borrowing against security of gold bars assumed greater and greater proportions but for some days past since the new Laval Cabinet came into existence it has decreased markedly.—Transocean Kuo Min.

LITTLE'S CONVINCING TITLE VICTORY

Holder Beats Martin-Smith Tolley And Burke Advance

(Special Air Mail Service)

St. Annes-On-Sea, May 29. Lawson Little, the young varsity student from San Francisco, has gone some way to justify the belief of Bobby Jones that he will win the British amateur championship for the second year in succession, writes a correspondent.

In the second round here Little gave some glimpses of the wonderful golf that he produced, when winning both the British and American titles last year. He defeated a former holder, Eric Martin Smith, a Cambridge Blue, by the convincing margin of 5 and 3.

For the 15 holes of the match Little was level 4's, a different story from that of the previous day, when any scratch player would have beaten him. "I certainly played better, but I am not satisfied by any means," said Little after the match. "I do not suppose he ever will be until that miraculous 66 at Prestwich a year ago can be reproduced. I see no prospect of any such incredible performance at St. Annes."

CHAMPION'S FINE START

Playing with extreme care, Little won the first hole in 3. He was over the green with his tee shot, but played a beautiful chip back the ball trembling on the lip of the hole. He also won the third, a hole 481 yards, where Martin Smith hooked into a bunker. Two up in three holes was an encouraging start, and Little took good care to hang on to his advantage. He did, however, lose the seventh, where, greatly to his surprise, he topped a spoon shot. But winning the next hole, where he hit a colossal drive of 320 yards, he turned 2 up, with a score of 38.

Little became 3 up at the 10th, where he played a massive niblick pitch 5 ft. from the flag and holed the putt for a 3. Playing with confidence and greater dash, the American won both the 14th and 15th, each in a superb 4 for the match. This was the Little who, 12 months ago, took two continents by storm. His figures were:

Out: 3 4 4, 5 3 4, 6 4 3-38.
In: 3 8 3, 4 4 4-24. Total for 15 holes, 60.

To-morrow he meets J. P. Zacharias, a former Rugby player, and one of the best amateur golfers on the Lancashire coast.

TWO MORE AMERICANS

Little is not the only American of whom serious notice has to be taken. There are two others. T. S. Tallor, the Metropolitan champion, a quiet, studious player, who won his first match fairly easily, and Richard Chapman, of the Greenwich Country Club, who is reputed to be a Herculean driver and a demon putter. He plays to-morrow for the first time.

Tolley has survived the first round, in characteristic fashion—brilliant and sadly indifferent golf intermingled.

The Hon. Michael Scott, who at the age of 57 is still capable of giving anyone a stern fight, went down to Eustace Storey, but only on the last green. Scott attributed his defeat to lack of concentration at the vital moment of the match.

In contrast to the previous day, all was peace and quiet, the morning's play passing off without a surprise of any kind.

Tolley, one of Britain's chief bulwarks against the American attack, won with the greatest of ease from a Scottish international, William Tulloch.

BRILLIANT SPELL

Tolley was both impressive and mediocre in turn, and suddenly striking his real form he won a string of holes and put the match beyond all doubt. If he can eliminate a destructive shot which creeps into his game at unexpected moments, he may march triumphantly through the championship. But this is a state of perfection which can scarcely be expected to a player like Tolley, who prefers the daring and the spectacular to the safe and commonplace game.

An incident at the second hole had an unsettling effect for a while. When Tolley came to putt, he found the ball wobbling about in the most extraordinary manner, and, picking it up, he found that a piece of glass was embedded in the cover. He lost the hole, and should have lost the next as well, where he hooked his drive into a ditch. Tolley took four shots to reach the green, and was thankful to hole out in 6. Even so he won the hole, for Tulloch, meanwhile, had been out of bounds on the railway track, and subsequently had pulled into a bunker.

TOLLEY PUTS ON PRESSURE

With four holes played, the match was all square, and then Tolley began to apply the pressure. He won the next five holes in 3, 4, 5, 4, 3—the strict par figures. Outdriven by 50 yards, and outplayed at every point, Tulloch was unable to offer any effective resistance. He was as clay in the other man's hands.

Even when Tolley topped an iron shot to the 11th, and socked his tee shot to the short 12th, Tulloch could do no more than halve the holes. In these circumstances Tolley had little or nothing to do. He won by 8 and 4 with a score of six over 4's for the 14 holes played.

GARNETT BEATS BELGIAN

Leslie Garnett, a youthful London player, who has gained an enviable reputation as one of the mighty hitters, also had an easy victory. He beat Count, Elie de Borchgrave, of the Royal Zoute Club, Belgium, a tall, slim man with a pleasing swing, though lacking in power, by 5 and 3.

Until the turn, where the match was all square, Garnett, despite the fact that from the tee he crushed his opponent, could make no headway. From this point, however, he gave a display that would have done credit to the greatest master, his figures for the next six holes being 4, 4, 2, 4, 4, 4—four strokes under par.

At the 11th (475 yards) he was putting for a 3 after a drive and a No. 4 iron shot, while at the 12th (223 yards), which was reached with a No. 2 iron, he rammed in a putt of 10 yards. At the 15th (450 yards) Garnett hit two splendid shots—a drive and No. 3 iron—to the middle of the green.

The story of Leonard Crawley's match was different. He established what seemed a winning position, and then proceeded to throw away the holes. His opponent was Otway Hayes, of the Royal Cape Club, South Africa.

Crawley became 4 up at the 15th, and lost the next three holes, in each case as the result of a hooked drive. This was only 1 up. But he made sure of a half in 4 at the 14th for the match.

RISDON'S SUCCESS

One of the best performances was that of P. W. L. Risdon, of Coumbe Hill, London, a member of the younger school of golfers. In beating John Morrison, of Sunningdale, by 7 and 6, he was two under 4's for the 12 holes of the match. Risdon won the first four holes, and at the long and extremely difficult seventh (548 yards), he was near the green with a drive and spoon shot, and playing a deft little chip, holed the putt for a four, a figure that has been equalled by not more than half a dozen of the competitors.

John Burke, Ireland's leading player, accomplished a fine piece of work in beating Francis Francis, of Sunningdale, by the decisive margin of 5 and 4. This was a match of long hitting, and I confess that the Irishman astonished me by the distances he reached.

A big burly man with the light of combat shining in his eyes, Burke outdrove Francis, who, rather taken aback at this unusual turn of events, began to press. This led to a series of destructive hooks, and Francis was beaten.

Out in 35, with a six at the seventh, Burke was three up, having got in two crushing blows—a "birdie" three at the eighth, and a "birdie" two at the next. For the 14 holes he was two under 4's.

ANOTHER SCOTTISH REVERSE

The fighting strength of the Scottish contingent suffered another severe loss when Andrew Jamieson was defeated by an American player, T. Sufferin Tallor, of New York, holder of the Metropolitan championship.

Tallor, a comparatively young man, has spent the winter months in Florida preparing for his first attack on the British championship. He has had the profound satisfaction of beating the man

SIR T. BEECHAM

In Duel With Women

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, May 29

Sir Thomas Beecham and Baroness Ravensdale, in a verbal duel on Women's place in orchestras, with Dame Ethel Smyth as self-appointed referee, provided entertainment for the distinguished company gathered at the Jubilee dinner of the British Women's Symphony Orchestra, at the Savoy Hotel last night.

Among other music leaders present were Sir Hugh Allen, principal of the Royal College of Music, Sir Landon Ronald, Principal of the Guildhall School of Music, Dr. Malcolm Sargent, and a host of music lovers, professional and amateur.

Count John McCormack lent his air to the cause of the British Women's Symphony Orchestra and sang several songs in his own inimitable style.

Mr. Geoffrey Toye, the chairman, lived up to his claim for audibility and brevity.

To Sir Thomas Beecham was entrusted the toast of the British Women's Symphony Orchestra.

"It may surprise many people to learn," he said, "that I am not opposed to women's orchestras, but that I am in favour of them. I look forward to the day when there will be more than one women's orchestra, and when women will be withdrawn from masculine orchestras."

"Why on earth do women want to play in men's orchestras? They play very much better than men, and they produce a horrible resentment in the hearts of men, and that does not tend to peace in the world."

"At rehearsals men's orchestras like to talk, smoke, shuffle their feet and have long intervals for refreshment. From all these weaknesses women are free. (Cheers.)"

"There should be an orchestra in every town in this country, and the reason there is not is that the men have been too lazy to found them. There is a chance for the women."

BEAUTY FIRST

"If I were to set about forming a women's orchestra," confessed Sir Thomas, "I should try to get the most beautiful women of the country into it. There is no inherent reason why a beautiful woman should be able to blow an instrument less well than a woman who is not beautiful."

"If we are to make a success of women in orchestras they must be in orchestras exclusively formed of women, and they must be conducted by women."

Baroness Ravensdale, who is vice-president of the orchestra, did not accept Sir Thomas's ideas of a women's orchestra. She objected to the principle of segregation.

"I think women members of the orchestra ought to try to get into other orchestras. Nor do I agree that they should always be conducted by men. I want to see them conducted by well-known conductors. This orchestra is a stepping stone to other opportunities, whatever Sir Thomas may think."

"He apparently dislikes feminine skirts and petticoats around him in an orchestra."

Sir Thomas (plaintively): "I didn't say so."

If a woman can play the oboe as well as a man she has every right to play it and to be selected for one of the big orchestras with no sex prejudice entering into it," added Lady Ravensdale to cheers.

The afterwards appealed for funds for the orchestra—the only one of its kind in the country."

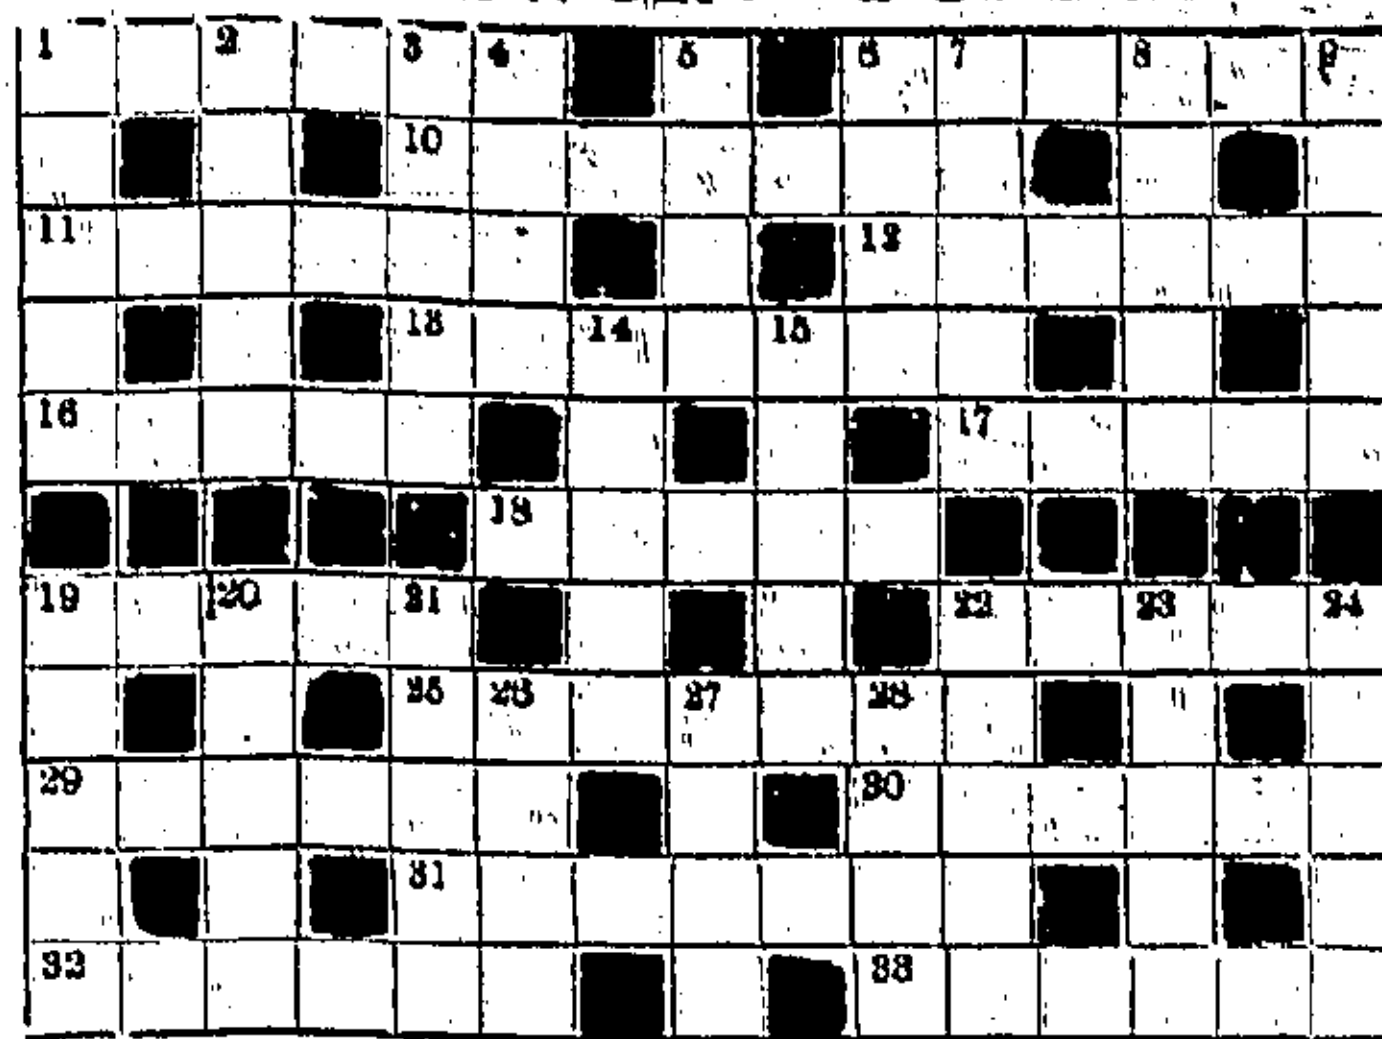

Dame Ethel Smyth said she disagreed with every word. Sir Thomas had said, but they deeply appreciated his action in leaving Covent Garden at this time to give them his support. (Laughter.)

who, at Muirfield in 1926, brought about the downfall of the greatest golfer of all time, Bobby Jones.

Both Tallor and Jamieson reached the ninth in 42, a score that included a good many 8's, and even a 7. Jamieson had been 3 down, but he got them all back by the time the turn was reached. But he was 2 down again going to the 13th, a hole which really settled the match.

Jamieson had approached to within 12 inches of the flag, whereupon Tallor, ramming in a putt right across the green, shattered all his hopes. Tallor polished off his opponent with a beautiful 3 at the 15th (481 yards)—a drive, a No. 3 iron and a putt of 6 yards.

"SANATOGEN will soon put him right again"

Physicians know by experience, how quickly and surely Sanatogen will build up strength in debilitated patients.

Whatever the cause of the weakness, be it illness, overwork or worry, Sanatogen cannot fail to do good. The phosphorus it contains is pure strength to the weakened nerve-cells. The albumin is nature's own building material of bodily power. It is the intricate combination of these two elements that has won Sanatogen the written recommendations of over 25,000 physicians.

And the splendid part of it is that Sanatogen is not only a true tonic-food, but also very easily digestible so that the weakest patient, and the weakest stomach, can digest it.

Sanatogen must do you good. It does not interfere with any medical treatment, and every glassful brings you nearer to perfect health again. Shorten that tedious period of convalescence. Be strong and healthy again. You can if you start your course of Sanatogen today.

Cotton Goods
The following reports have been received.

There is nothing fresh to report since our last issue, the market remaining very quiet with prices still declining. Deliveries are very poor, retailers finding it difficult to make sales owing to a total absence of enquiry from the Interior. Japanese productions are selling more freely and showing profits.

One latest Cotton prices to hand are those of the 6th inst.

BERLIN BOURSE

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Berlin, June 11.

More rational counsels seem to have prevailed on the sharemarket on Tuesday since no trace of the stormy upward tendency in prices which reached a climax last Friday is in evidence.

Comparatively little stock was offered but buyers were almost non-existent so that prices were weaker all round and many shares declining three per cent. and more. This sag is particularly pronounced in metallurgicals and electrics.

Fixed interest security markets were quiet as heretofore, prices being almost unchanged.

Call Money at 3 per cent.

Young Loan 103 1/2, Friday unquoted.

Reichsmarks dropped 2 1/2 to 175 1/2.

Dyestuffs 2 lower to 153 1/2, Salol 4 to 175 1/2.

German Steel Trusts down by 1 1/2 to 84 1/2.

German Mineral Oils slumped 3 to 112 1/2.

Siemenshalske plunged 4 1/2 to 123 1/2.

Bemberg Rayon declined 1 1/2 to 123 1/2.

REICHSBANK RETURN

[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Berlin, June 11.

The Reichsbank return dated June 7 issued on Tuesday shows a noticeable increase in the total amount of legal tender in circulation by about 170 millions marks, this being explained by the exceptional demands for ready cash to finance the Whitsun Holidays.

Goldstock increased by 0.7 millions to 83.1 millions reichsmarks, while foreign currency reserves remain unchanged at 4.0 millions reichsmarks, making the total increase in note cover to 0.7 to 87.1 millions reichsmarks.

Note issue decreased by 77.7 millions to 373.3 millions. The amount of credit issued as measured by bills, cheques, and advances in investments decreased by 125.8 to 441.8 millions reichsmarks.
